Sadat calls truce; says war ended

by United Press International

Egypt said its bombers smashed two radar stations and two key airfields in massive raids against Libya Sunday, and President Anwar Sadat announced in Cairo his troops had ended the six-day border war.

But across the desert separating the two Arab nations, Libya made no mention of a ceasefire.

The Tripoli government's news agency, which said it was "crushing" the invasion force, reported Libyan antiaircraft gunners, fighter pilots and militiamen shot down 15 Egyptian planes. A military spokesman appealed to civilians to take up weapons and fight "to the very last one."

SADAT DECLARED a truce during a meeting with Algeria's President Houari Boumedienne, who had just arrived from Tripoli and talks with Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, Cairo radio said.

Egypt announced no details of its cease-fire. But the Palestine Liberation Organization said Boumedienne brought to Egypt Khadafy's acceptance of a proposal by guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat for "halting military operations by both sides and getting talks started between them for the stabilization of a cease-fire."

As Egypt's truce was announced over Cairo radio, Libya's Arab Revolution News Agency reported "the enemy is now trying to occupy the village of Jaghboub by dropping paratroopers from helicopters."

The agency said a Libyan military spokesman appealed to villagers to "carry weapons in defense of their soil and honor to the very last one."

Military spokesmen in Cairo said Egyptian bombers launched major airstrikes Sunday against two key Libyan airfields and two radar stations, smashing antiaircraft missiles, a half-dozen planes parked outside their bombproof hangars, tanks and a reported training camp for saboteurs.

TWO RADAR stations, one 30 miles and the other about 100 miles inside Libya, were "totally destroyed," a military spokesman said.

Arab diplomatic sources in Beirut said Egypt's bombing raids since Friday have killed several Soviet technicians serving in Libya, which has

TV shows' fare a case of who, where

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Somewhere in the South, "Hee Haw" is giving the Fonz a run for his money.

There's no question that "Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley," which ABC runs back-to-back on Tuesday nights, is the most successful ratings package on television. These nostalgia shows are favorites with all age groups in every part of the country.

But, in the deep South, "Hee Haw," a syndicated hootenanny, is king of the haystack. The program doesn't even show up on the list of the 65 most watched shows in the Chicago area.

WHAT PEOPLE WATCH and become partial to on television is influenced by where they live, their sex, age, education and income. It is what media researchers and titans call demographics.

The study of what people watch and why is of the utmost importance to the great television and advertising minds in the country. After all, when an advertiser is paying between $30,000 and $250,000 for a 60-second commercial spot in prime time, he wants to make sure he's reaching the people who will buy his product.

Most sponsors, by the very nature of their products, are interested in reaching a young, urban audience — those who are most likely to have the most buying power and urge to buy.

That is why prime-time television on ABC, CBS and NBC is dominated by police action dramas and situation comedies rather than documentaries and classical theater. The idea is to attract the broadest possible audience and then hold its attention for two or three seasons.

The networks are embroiled in a race that's even more important than program ratings, said George Keramidas, vice president in charge of research for the ABC network. They are vying for advertising dollars that will be spent on commercials during prime time in the new fall season.

ACCORDING TO A recent Wall Street Journal report, advertisers are paying as much as 30 per cent more for this fall's prime time commercial time than last year's. ABC, which clinched first place in the ratings last season, already has $500 million in prime time commitments for the new fall season. The other two netowrks aren't far behind.

Because those advertising dollars are the networks' life blood and because they are attracted by successful programming with broad appeal, the networks constantly monitor who is watching what on television and why, Keramidas said.

The viewing habits of people in the Chicago area who, according to the networks, comprise much of that young, urban audience they're looking to please, aren't really different from the national viewing habits.

ABC's "Happy Days," "Laverne and Shirley" and "Charlie's Angels" dominate telecision viewing preferences. The differences in viewing habits are noticeable, however, in specic age groups and sexes.

Generally, television audiences in the Chicago area seem to prefer more police action dramas such as "Baretta" and "Streets of San Francisco," (which has been canceled).

Ratings information for the period from November 1976 to March 1977, compiled by A. C. Nielsen, takes into account only regularly scheduled prime-time programs and not network specials such as "Roots."

Village to go to court on condo razing

Arlington Heights will go to court in September to seek demolition of the uncompleted Arlington Square condominium development at Rand Road and Ill. Rte. 53.

In the interim, village officials also are seeking a cleanup at the complex where construction was halted two years ago because financing was stopped.

Countersuits between Plato Foufas & Co., developer of Arlington Square, and the First Pennsylvania Mortgage Trust Co. are still pending. Those suits have stalled the village's attempts to get the unfinished buildings razed.

"We've played around with them for more than a year waiting to see if they could resume construction, but now we've decided there's no more room or time to play around," Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel said.

BUT WHEN THE case goes to trial in Cook County Circuit Court Sept. 2, Foufas' attorney, Robert Keck, plans to again plead against demolition of the project because of the pending suits between Foufas and the First Pennsylvania.

"We plan to present within 10 days a request for a trial date for the case between Foufas and the lendor who stopped funding," Keck said. "In the case with the village, I think the judge will realize that rather than destroy buildings worth $3.5 million, it would be better to wait and see if the project will be completed."

However, Keck said he does not expect the case between Foufas and First Pennsylvania to be heard before January.

Village officials say that they may again begin to issue tickets to Foufas for various violations, including unboarded windows, water in basements and elevator shafts, piles of debris and high weeds.

Police check 3 motives in slayings

Police investigators Sunday were considering three possible motives in the murder of four businessmen, who were found shot to death in an elevator of a Park Ridge office building Friday.

The businessmen, owners and employes of U.S. Universal Inc., 216 W. Higgins Rd., Park Ridge, were shot 25 to 30 times with a .22 caliber pistol at close range as they were about to emerge from the elevator sometime early Friday morning, police said.

Investigators are considering several possible motives for the slaying:

- A disgruntled employe, taking revenge against the men for their business affairs.
- A professional murder linked to possible underworld influences.
- The result of a business dispute with unknown clients.

Park Ridge Capt. John Baudek said Sunday that police have no evidence yet to suggest a motive for the killings.

"I would go so far as to say that the murders were carefully planned," Baudek said, "but we have nothing to suggest it was a professional hit."

He discounted a statement by Det. Rocco Rinaldi of the Chicago Police Dept., who said Friday the murders were "methodical" and "professional." The murders were carried out with a .22 caliber pistol, the same type of weapon used to kill several crime syndicate figures in recent years.

POLICE SPENT most of Saturday and Sunday questioning business associates of the victims identified as Joseph LaRose, 35, of 1830 W. Thornhill Rd., Inverness; his brother-in-law John Vische, 32, of 17800 Wood Terrace Rd., Country Club Hills; Donald Marchbanks, 53, of 12926 Greenwood, Blue Island; and Malcolm Russell, 36, of 515 W. Grant, Chicago.

A registered agent of U.S. Universal, Joseph Hendersen, was questioned by police Saturday and released Sunday. Hendersen, 26, has two residences, one in Wheeling and one in Schaumburg, but

Girl, 6 years, molested in Rolling Meadows

by DANN GIRE

A 6-year-old Rolling Meadows girl was molested at knifepoint Sunday afternoon near the recreation center of the Whispering Glen Apartment complex, the second such incident there in two weeks.

The girl, who police would not identify, was walking near the recreation center, located in the middle of the complex, at Ill. Rte. 53 and Algonquin Road, when a man with blond hair grabbed the girl and put a knife to her throat, investigators said. Police would say only that the girl was molested.

The girl lives on the second floor of the 4718 Arbor Dr. building, next door to 2-year-old Tammy Morrow, who was severely beaten by an unknown assailant at 8 p.m. July 13 in the basement of the building.

THE 6-YEAR-OLD was not injured, according to police who questioned a number of youngsters in the area about the incident.

Rolling Meadows police said they do not suspect the same assailant was involved in both incidents.

Uniformed patrolmen were on the scene soon after the incident was reported, but because no immediate description of the man was available, no arrest was made.

Police have narrowed a list of suspects in the child-beating of Tammy Morrow down to two persons who have been under investigation for the past week, police said.

TAMMY MORROW reportedly has been shown several photographs of possible suspects by police.

Investigators had hoped to make an arrest in the Morrow case last week, but by Sunday night no one had been taken into custody.

Tammy had described her assailant as "a bad boy with dark skin," Michael Smith of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services said. The difference in descriptions of the assailants and the way the assailants reacted in each incident suggests that two males are involved, police said.

Some residents of Whispering Glen said they have become very upset over the attack of the Morrow girl.

Linda Jones, a lifeguard at Whispering Glen swimming pool, said word of the molesting Sunday spread quickly around the complex.

SHE SAID SHE has heard of similar cases of child molesting in the area, but they could not be confirmed Sunday.

"I hear a lot about what's going on around here because the kids come into the pool," she said.

Ms. Jones, who has been a lifeguard at the pool for two summers, called the problems with threats to the childrtn "just unreal."

The knife assault Sunday has been turned over to Rolling Meadows detectives, who were unavailable for comment Sunday night.

'Women good white-collar soldiers'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new research report says women in some ways make better soldiers than men and could fill up to one-third of all military jobs, mainly in white-collar areas.

The report published by Washington's Brookings Institution stops short of recommending women for regular combat duty, however, and even debunks some of the popular conceptions about Israeli and Soviet female troops.

But authors Martin Binkin and Air Force Lt. Col. Shirley Bach do say the U.S. military should experiment with women in combat roles by integrating some Army and Marine combat battalions and some Navy ships, and by putting Air Force women in some missile launch crews, a fighter squadron and a bomber squadron.

THEY SAY SUCH a test of female combat effectiveness might take several years.

"We felt neither the status quo nor full equality is in order" at present, they said in a statement issued at a briefing on their report, "Women and the Military."

The report said, however, that women are well suited for many non-combat jobs and actually cost the military less than male enlistees because, despite time lost for pregnancies, they lose less time from service.

The reason for that, it said, is that men are more likely to raise military discipline problems, including drug and alcohol abuse.

THE ARMED FORCES have worked out plans to increase the number of women in the military from the present 5 per cent to 7 per cent by the 1980s.

But Bach and Binkin said many more women will be needed because of a decrease in the pool of available 18-year-old men. If the draft is resumed, they said, "we will have to draft women as well as men."

They said women now fill only 11 per cent of the military white collar jobs, which comprise about a third of all existing positions.

They said a total of 599,500 women, or 33 per cent of the present military force, could be used.

ON THE controversial question of assigning women to combat duty, however, they said even those nations which have boasted of their female troops quickly removed them from the front as soon as men were available.

"The popular conception of the Israeli woman, weapon in hand, as an equal in combat with her male comrades is based more on myth than reality," they said.

While Israeli women now receive weapons training, they fought as foot soldiers only for about two months in the independence battles of the late 1940s.

In the grimmest days of World War II, they said, the Soviet Union had about 800,000 women operating tanks, fighter planes, machine guns and other weapons. But now, they said, there appear to be no Soviet women in such jobs.

now is living on the North Side of Chicago, police said. No explanations for the multiple addresses was given.

Police said that U.S. Universal apparently was operating a large-scale bilking scheme in which the company would recruit "salesmen" or investors who would pay the owners $1,750 for a suitcase full of burglar and smoke alarms. The alarms were worth only $400, investigators said.

THE SALESMEN then would be asked to recruit other salesmen for the company who also would pay the "deposit for the alarms; a deposit the company never would return, police said. A commission would be given to a salesman for each person he recruited.

"Even after we've spoken to associates for two days, we have yet to find anyone who so much as sold a single alarm," police investigators said.

Various governmental agencies have been investigating all the murdered men for their alleged roles with other bilking schemes or companies in other parts of the country, police said.

Park Ridge detectives are awaiting the results of studies by the Cook County evidence technicians who are attempting to find fingerprints or other clues to the killer's identity.

'Corpse' walks in halfway through funeral plans

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Jeanniene Haapala was trying to control her emotions as she arranged for the funeral of her 20-year-old son Steven Farison, identified as a victim in a fiery traffic accident early Saturday.

Suddenly she turned away from the funeral home desk and became "so weak I couldn't even stand up."

Steve was standing in front of her.

"This is a hell of a place for a family reunion," he said.

FLUSTERED AUTHORITIES in this central Michigan town soon discovered they had inaccurately identified a man's charred body Saturday in the wreck that also killed Peggy Wilcox, 18, and Julie Loose, 17, both of Midland. Early Sunday, authorities were able to identify the third victim as Bruce Beebe, 19, of Midland.

"We were halfway through making the (funeral) arrangements," said Mrs. Haapala of Flint. "It's quite a shock. I just pitched forward on the desk and cried."

Farison, a son by a previous marriage and now living away from home, had been in the car with the victims before the accident.

Saginaw County Sheriff Dept. officers spent 90 minutes with Mrs. Haapala and her husband Saturday asking about their son's jewelry, teeth and anything else that could help identify the burned body. Statements from the couple led investigators to identify the body as that of Farison.

But as the couple started making funeral arrangements, Farison's cousin, Patricia Robinson, spotted the supposed victim riding a bicycle down a city street.

"I said 'My God, what are you doing? Your mom is making funeral arrangements,' " Miss Robinson said. "It was really freaky."

FARISON, SHE SAID, was in tears because he had heard his friends were dead. But he went to the funeral home to halt further planning of his own burial.

Mrs. Haapala wasn't alone in her astonishment. Funeral Director Gerald Miner said the confrontation was a unique experience in his career.

"In 31 years in the business," Miner said, "I've never had the corpse walk in on me."

Mrs. Haapala said had it not been for her son's chance meeting with his cousin, it may have been a long time before she learned of the error.

"I could have buried someone else's son and not even have known it," she said. "It was to have been a closed casket."

Jury to begin deliberating fate of Logan today

by BILL HILL

A criminal court jury is expected to begin deliberations today on the fate of Marrion Logan, a 31-year-old Chicago man charged with the June 1976 murder of Phyllis Anderson of Buffalo Grove.

Closing arguments in the week-old murder trial are to begin late this morning in the courtroom of Cook County Circuit Court Judge James M. Bailey, with the jury getting the case this afternoon.

There was speculation that it would not take the seven-man, five-woman jury long to reach a verdict after Logan's defense opened and closed Saturday with less than two hours of testimony for the defense.

LOGAN'S court-appointed attorney, Irwin Frazin, called only Logan and two Chicago police officers to testify.

On Friday, Mrs. Anderson's husband, Leo, 51, and his daughter, Elizabeth, 17, pointed to Logan as the man who, on June 13, 1976, fired four or five shots into the Anderson car, which had been forced off the Dan Ryan Expressway by heavy rains and had become stalled near a flooded viaduct on West 69th Street in Chicago.

When Frazin asked Logan if he fired those shots into the Anderson's brown station wagon, the accused killer replied, "I did not."

Police said the shots were fired after Anderson refused to pay the $10 being demanded by several black youths who also were throwing rocks and bricks at the stalled cars.

THE SHOTS STRUCK Mrs. Anderson, 51, in the head, and her husband in the neck and shoulder. Three of the Anderson's six children were in the car but were not injured.

Frazin's questioning of the two police officers dealt with an error in the original police report of the shooting and whether Elizabeth Anderson on June 13 described the killer as having a beard and wearing a red handkerchief around his neck. After the policeman, Paul Parizanski, said she mentioned neither, Frazin showed the jury the clothes Logan said he was wearing that night, including a red handkerchief.

Logan testified Saturday that he was attempting to stop the teen-age youths he saw throwing rocks and bricks at the cars lined up because of the flooded viaduct.

Phyllis Anderson

"There was mass confusion. I observed a lot of teen-agers on the street, about 12 to 20 kids. It looked as if they were getting money from passersby," Logan said.

"I WAS TOLD this more or less was a retaliation of Marquette Park (a racial confrontation earlier in the month) and I said what they were doing didn't make sense," he said.

Logan Saturday described fighting with two youths in attempts to stop them from throwing rocks at the cars. He also said he urged several motorists to turn around and avoid the trouble.

Logan said when he heard the shots fired he headed to his basement apartment and others on the street scattered.

"I didn't fire any shots at automobiles. I don't own a 45-caliber gun," Logan said in answer to Frazin's questions.

LOGAN SAID HE did not see who fired the shots and that he did not hear of the shooting until the next morning when he was on his way to work at a Commonwealth Edison construction site.

Assistant State's Atty. Thomas Callum accused Logan of disposing of the 45-caliber pistol used to murder Mrs. Anderson at the Commonwealth Edison site where concrete forms were being poured.

Callum also submitted into evidence five rifles, an ammunition shoulder belt, a pistol and about 20 boxes of ammunition found in Logan's apartment.

Logan said all of the guns and ammunition were used for hunting, but Callum insisted that the ammunition in the shoulder belt was for a 45-caliber pistol, such as the one used to kill Mrs. Anderson.

'Ideology rationalizes acts'

Expert links terrorism to sex

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Terrorism stems more from a lust for violence and perhaps from sexual impulse than from political motivation, according to an expert in the subject.

American University Professor H.H.R. Cooper offered that assessment in congressional testimony last week and said terrorism is "a growth industry" even though incidents appear to be slackening.

He said the New York City power failure and the Alaska pipeline explosion spotlighted areas where nations are technologically vulnerable, and added, "I would expect attacks by terrorists on power stations, oil refineries and other sensitive targets" in the future.

"IT IS NOT simply political indoctrination or fanatical allegiance to a cause that produces terrorism," Cooper told a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing.

"The resort to soulless violence we call terrorism requires a peculiar, personal commitment that is complex and intricate in its genesis . . . neither politics nor ideology make terrorists; they are only rationalizations for acts of terrorism."

He testified that biographical research materials "hint at a strong connection between sex and terrorism.

"In plain terms, it is suggested that the politics of sex are more influential in terrorism than the politics of Mao, Trotsky or Ho Chi Minh. It is just that the latter, as a rationalization, seems so much more respectable and the terrorist, above all, craves respect."

Terrorism, he said, "is a technique by means of which a violent act of the threat thereof is used for the prime purpose of creating overwhelming fear for coercive purposes."

He did not explain the alleged link between sex and terrorism.

Cooper, an Englishman, was staff director of a federal advisory task force on terrorism.

In an interview after his testimony, he made clear he uses a strict definition of terrorism that takes no acount of the cause supposedly being served.

Asked whether Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin, a member of the underground that fought for creation of Israel, fit his definition of a terrorist, he said: "I was in the British army at that time. He was a terrorist."

AND HE SAID Begin and the late Martin Luther King Jr. are examples of leaders who may unintentionally inspire terrorist acts.

"However well intentioned a politician may be," he said of Begin, "some politicians are like lightning conductors. And if the atmosphere is explosive, the presence of that politician will lead to a disturbed situation that people who are disruptive of society can turn to their advantage."

He said he admired King's work as a champion of racial equality and civil rights causes.

"But if you have a very charismatic character you will also have a very small number of unthinking followers who are not interested in what he is saying," Cooper said.

"If you have a very disturbed time in a country, the presence of a leader like that can cause a very disturbed situation, and I believe that was the case with Martin Luther King."

• Former President Gerald R. Ford will teach college classes in Omaha and Lincoln, Neb., this fall and may return in the spring, University of Nebraska officials said during the weekend.

• Entertainer Tony Orlando tearfully announced his retirement from show business to a shocked audience at a summer entertainment center Friday in Cohasset, Mass. In the midst of delivering "Tie a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree," Orlando suddenly stopped singing. "I'm one oak tree that's not going to cut himself down," he said in a tearful voice. Orlando wants to spend more time with his family and is said to be still recovering from the suicide of his close friend, Freddie Prinze.

• Unapparent to passersby, Ted Kennedy Jr., Sen. Edward Kennedy's 15-year-old son who lost his right leg several years ago to cancer, directs cars onto ferries going to Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard from Hyannis, Mass. The summer job pays $2.35 per hour and in those over-alls and hat, the Kennedy trooper looks just like any other teen-ager, working away the hours until school resumes in the fall.

White House denies report

Carter plans aid to quell N. Ireland war: paper

LONDON (UPI) — President Carter, at the urging of four prominent Irish-American political figures, plans to offer aid to Protestants and Catholics in Northern Ireland as an incentive to peace, the Sunday London Times said.

In Washington, White House spokesman Jerry Schecter denied the story, saying the White House had no plans to give aid to Northern Ireland.

The newspaper said Carter will deliver a major speech in the next few weeks promising U.S. aid to both Protestant and Catholic communities in Ulster if this will help foster a political solution to end the violence in the province.

THE SUNDAY Times said Carter's action resulted from pressure by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, Senators Edward Kennedy and Pattick Moynihan and Gov. Hugh Carey of New York.

The newspaper said the four met with Sec. of State Cyrus Vance June 9 to stress that American dollars for Irish Republican Army guns would not solve the Irish problem.

A spokesman for Kennedy said Kennedy, O'Neill and Moynihan met Vance at an "exploratory" session to see if there was anything the government could do to encourage peace in Ulster. But he said he was unaware of any new developments stemming from the meeting.

He said Carey did not attend the meeting.

THE MEETING also was confirmed by the State Department, but "beyond that, I cannot give a statement of facts," a spokesman said.

"You won't see Cyrus Vance jetting in on Air Force One and shuttling between London, Dublin and Belfast trying to get agreement," the Sunday Times quoted one Washington source as saying.

Britain's Foreign Minister David Owen said during a television interview in Washington Sunday the United States in the past had been "helpful to the British in trying to reach a resolution of this tragic conflict."

Asked whether there was a plan for an active American role, Owen said, "No. I think they will be supportive and they will, as they have every right to do, urge a peaceful resolution of this tragic and difficult problem."

Truce called; no word from Libya

received an estimated $1 billion in military assistance from Moscow during the past 18 months.

Egypt said it lost two planes during the attacks Sunday. Libya said it shot down 15 of Cairo's bombers, including one Soviet-made Sukhoi-20 bomber shot down by militiamen over a border village.

"The popular resistance of men and women is now engaging the enemy in combat and destroying it a group at a time," The Libyan news agency said, quoting a military spokesman.

OBSERVERS IN CAIRO said the fighting since Tuesday was the climax of a bitter, four-year feud between Sadat and Khadafy. Sources said they believed Sadat was bent on forcing Khadafy's overthrow by more moderate elements in Libya.

Political sources in Israel said the Tel Aviv government promised Sadat it would not "exploit in any fashion the military tension," a development that left Egypt free to move troops away from the Suez Canal and concentrate on Libya.

Sadat, who has branded Khadafy a "madman" in a nationwide speech, said Friday Egypt was "forced to repel Libyan aggressions."

"Egyptian strategic warplanes are bombing civilian targets in Libyan towns and villages," the Libyan news agency said Sunday night.

"Egyptian warplanes are being shot down inside Libyan territory, while our forces are not engaged in any military activity on Egyptian soil," the Libyan spokesman said.

"The regime of President Anwar Sadat has declared war against the Libyan people — and without any excuse except his black hatred for the Libyan people," the news agency said. It also reported an air strike against the Kufra desert oasis 500 miles south of the Mediterranean killed a number of "innocent Italian workmen" at a construction project.

EGYPT SAID ITS bombers stuck to military targets.

Military spokesmen in Cairo said "large numbers" of bombers attacked a military airfield outside Tobruk early Sunday. Two Egyptian planes were shot down over El Adem air base 80 miles west of the Egyptian-Libyan border and one pilot bailed out, they said.

The raiders returned in the afternoon and smashed the two radar stations — one near Tobruk and another closer to Egypt — and swooped across the desert to the Kufra oasis, the spokesmen said, "after we ascertained that a number of Libyan warplanes had arrived to this airport, a development which could threaten the security of the state."

Libya has reported the loss of two aircraft but denied Egyptian fighters scored any kills: one was shot down accidentally by ground sulp'rt gunners, the Libyans said, and another crashed in poor visibility conditions.

'6 wouldn't be dead if cops acted'

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. (UPI) — The wife of a man charged with murdering six persons said Sunday "those people would not be dead" if police had responded two days earlier to his gunpoint threat to kill her over their impending divorce.

Police denied her accusation, saying she had refused to press charges against her husband, Dewitt Henry, 26, an unemployed truck driver.

Henry, 26, was scheduled to be arraigned Monday on charges of gunning down the victims, including a pregnant woman whose baby could not be saved, at about 2 a.m. Saturday outside a suburban bar from which he had been ejected for fighting.

VIKKI HENRY, 25, who had filed for divorce against her husband of five months, said he threatened to kill her at her apartment Thursday over their estrangement and pointed a gun "at my head."

But she said a neighbor who was present and called police was told officers were powerless to act unless a crime was committed.

Mrs. Henry said her husband, a former bouncer at the bar, entered her apartment after he had just been served with a court order prohibiting him from contacting her until divorce proceedings had been completed.

"He was very angry. He was waving a gun around," she said. "He pointed the gun at my head and said, 'I'm going to kill you.' I said I would go with him in the truck if he promised not to hurt me. He took me in the truck and we drove way out east of town.

"He was frustrated. He wanted to know why we couldn't work things out. I told him things wouldn't work.

"He said he was going to kill himself in front of me. I flipped out and started screaming. I told him to drop the gun. He threw it in a field and we went back to town."

MRS. HENRY SAID if police had responded to her neighbor's call "those shootings wouldn't have happened. Those people would not be dead."

However, state police said Mrs. Henry was contacted later and declined to press charges against her spouse.

The killings occurred after Henry was ejected from Uncle Albert's bar. Bill Ransom, former owner of the lounge, said he asked Henry about repayment of a loan and a fight ensued.

Police said an apparent target of the shootings, Gary Lee Anderson, 27, was killed by the first shot. Also killed were Robert Seater, 26; his eight-month-pregnant wife, Carol Ann, 23; Andrew Walter, 23; Michael Mortenson, 23, and James Trueman, of Kodiak, Alaska.

OFFICERS IN PATROL cars captured Henry after a chase in which he shot out the windshields of two of their vehicles and was slightly wounded.

Henry's stepmother, Mrs. Dewitt Charles Henry, said that when she talked to him after the shootings, "He said he didn't even remember it."

Sources close to the family said Henry was born in Bakersfield, Calif., and grew up in nearby Wasco, Calif., where he was a high school honor student and athlete who went on to study pre-law in college.

After being discharged from the Navy on a medical disability, he returned to Klamath Falls, where he took a job as a bouncer at Kitty's Snake Pit, now known as Uncle Albert's bar.

NANCY BEATTY, 22, of Avon smiles happily after she was crowned Miss Illinois at Aurora West High School late Saturday. The former Miss Macomb will represent Illinois in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City in September. Ms. Beatty will be a senior this fall at Western Illinois University, where she is majoring in music, applied voice. She received a $3,000 scholarship, a $1,500 wardrobe, the use of a car for a year and a diamond ring.

Boy listed as stable after 2-car collision

A 3-year-old child injured Friday in a two-car accident north of Wauconda was listed in stable condition Sunday at Condell Memorial Hospital, Libertyville. The child's grandmother was killed in the accident. Joseph K. Kaiser was one of three persons hurt when a car driven by his grandfather, Mathew Kaiser, of 5349 N. Pueblo, Chicago, collided with an Illinois State Police squad car. The elder Kaiser's wife, Elizabeth, 56, was killed.

Hospital spokesmen said Mathew Kaiser was released Sunday after being treated for multiple cuts and bruises. Joseph Kaiser, who had been listed in critical condition Friday, received multiple fractures in the accident. Patrolman John Emrich of McHenry suffered head injuries in the accident and was listed in stable condition Sunday at McHenry Hospital. The Kaiser vehicle was northbound on Ill. Rte. 12 when it turned left at Case Road into the path of Emrich's southbound car.

It's fur-real; pets compete in second annual olympics

Peanuts the cat took one look at the crowd in the Randhurst Shopping Center mall and promptly wrapped front paws firmly around his owner's neck.

Nearby, a grey tabby cat named Tiger crouched fearfully near his owner's feet. Throughout the mall, turtles, rabbits, gerbils and hamsters peered warily out from their cages.

The occasion was the second Annual Pet Olympics sponsored by Pet World and Hill Science Diet Co. Events ranged from the ugliest dog contest to the master look-alike contest.

ONE OF SUNDAY'S main attractions was the competition among felines. Cast of every breed, shape and size vied for winning titles in three events — longest tail, fattest cat and most lovable. About 60 spectators waited patiently as cats were hauled on the stage one by one to be measured and weighed.

Most of the animal contenders seemed distraught with the whole affair. One small Siamese cat clung tightly to her owner, periodically yowling in protest. Others huddled in their masters arms, peering timidly at the crowd.

Most of the entrants in the longest tail contest seemed indignant about having their tails measured by the judges. One cat, Sylvester, who eventually won the most lovable cat contest, refused to have his tail measured.

The majority of the cats seemed resigned — if a little put out — about being subjected to the whole affair. Only a few such as Tiger, seemed at ease.

ON THE SIDELINES, competitors in the hamster, mice, gerbil, rabbit and turtle classes began warming up. In a small pen, a large white rabbit hopped cautiously past a slow moving turtle. Seconds later, a white mouse running furiously in a clear plastic ball shot past both of them.

Owners of the animals tried various means of cheering on their entries. Several nudged the small critters while others screamed encouragement. One small girl sat in the corner talking quietly and kissing her furry hamster.

The emcee for the event acknowledged the animals present were better behaved than last year's but urged owners to keep their pets separated.

"Last year, we had some minor problems. A couple of cats got into it in what we called the Muhammad Ali contest," he said.

Thoughts on a mattress

A one act play

Place: Someone's Bedroom.
Time: 11:30 P.M.
Mabel: John, are you awake?
John: Naturally I'm awake. Who could sleep on this mattress?
Mabel: It's only six years old and they told us it should last 15 or 20 years.
John: They meant that's how much older we would get if we slept on it for six years.
Mabel: It was their best mattress. It is supposed to have over 800 coils in it.
John: I know — I can feel every one of them poking me in the side.
Mabel: We should go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. They make a beautiful mattress — it has the cutest shaped coils in it.
John: How do you know so much about them?
Mabel: I was there with Marge last month. She says their new mattress is fantastic. Why don't you go right now?
John: Are you crazy? It's almost midnight!
Mabel: Then where are you going?
John: I'm going to sleep on the sofa.
Mabel: Oh no you don't. You had the sofa last night. You can sleep on the floor tonight!

Dogging animals steps takes worker away from desk

by PAUL GORES

Marilyn Pyter recently gave up a nice, safe office job with the Palatine Police Dept. to take a job that she says will bring her closer to the public — and growling dogs and wild raccoons and nervous skunks.

Ms. Pyter, of Rolling Meadows, is Palatine's new animal warden. It is a job that takes her through the village each day, snaring runaway dogs, setting traps and checking for village pet tags.

Being animal warden is a change from her job as arrest records clerk, but so far Ms. Pyter is pleased with her new post.

"I'm glad I'm out here," she said. "But maybe you should ask me again after I'm called out to catch a skunk or a mad raccoon."

MARILYN PYTER

MS. PYTER IS completing her first week as animal warden, a job that has been vacant since March. Most of her training for the job has come from former animal warden James Grab.

She has learned how to catch dogs with snare poles, set traps, fire a tranquilizer gun and drive the police animal control vehicle, formerly a paddy wagon.

"It's outside, and I'm dealing with the public a little bit more," she said of the job. "The opening was there and it's a step up in pay."

The job of animal warden is an unpredictable one, and potentially is hazardous.

"My first thought when I get a call is how big it is and how mean it is," Ms. Pyter said.

THURSDAY MORNING she chased down and cornered a dog she described as the "meanest I've run across." It took 15 minutes to collar the animal and get it into the truck, she said.

Though Ms. Pyter is supplied with heavy leather gloves to protect against bites, she does not use them. She uses the snare poles, which keep the animal about five feet away as she leads it back to the truck. Besides a small can of chemical repellent, the pole is the only tool against a dog bite.

"I guess I don't have a whole lot of protection," she said.

Each day after work, her children ask if she's caught any dogs or cats.

"I guess they think I'm going to bring them home," she said. The Pyters already have a pet dog. Most of the calls are from homeowners complaining about unleashed dogs roaming around in their yards, Ms. Pyter said.

WILD ANIMALS are turned loose in their natural habitats, while dogs and cats captured by the animal warden are taken to Hilltop Kennels in Palatine.

Police keep a log of calls from residents whose dogs or cats are missing, she said. The dog or cat is returned to the owner if the animal warden finds it.

Dealing fairly with residents as well as animals is part of the job.

"There is a lot of misunderstanding between the village and property owners as far as dogs and cats are concerned," she said.

Many homeowners are not aware of ordinances concerning unleashed dogs and registration of pets, she said.

Ms. Pyter does not know how long she will be animal warden, but it won't be forever, she said.

"Right now, of course, I'm happy with it," she said. "But I don't think it's something to make your life's work."

Man kicked, hit after argument

An Arlington Heights man was punched and kicked by two men following an argument early Sunday in the parking lot adjacent to Butch McGuire's tavern, 300 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

Ronald McCratic, 30, of 1002 N. Dryden Ave., Arlington Heights, suffered cuts to the head when two men attacked him after McCratic swore at the men. McCratic said the argument began after the car in which the two men were driving bumped him as he was walking.

McCratic refused medical attention. The two assailants escaped, police said.

BILL AND GEORGE Vassos, owners of the Countryside Inn look dejected as they inspect the damage from a fire which swept through the kitchen of the restaurant early Saturday, causing an estimated $100,000 damage. Fire officials had no cause for the blaze Sunday.

$100,000 fire damage to restaurant

An early-morning fire Saturday caused an estimated $100,000 damage to the Countryside Inn restaurant, 1 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights.

Arlington Heights Fire Chief John Hayden Sunday said the blaze broke out about 5:55 a.m. in the kitchen of the restaurant.

Firefighters from Mount Prospect and Rolling Meadows were called in to extinguish the fire, which was confined to the kitchen area of the restaurant. The bar and dining room area of the restaurant sustained smoke damage, authorities said. Four apartments above the restaurant were not damaged by the blaze, he said.

Hayden said a cause of the fire has not been determined and the State Fire Marshal's Office will be called in today to assist in the investigation.

The restaurant was closed for business Sunday and Hayden said damaged areas would probably have to be remodeled. George and Bill Vassos, owners of the restaurant, were unavailable for comment Sunday.

Climate changes the cause

Limit on future coal use seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Climate changes caused by increased release of carbon dioxide into the air may force limits on coal use as an energy source in future decades, a National Research Council report said Sunday.

The panel said nuclear and solar alternatives to fossil fuels present difficulties, but climate changes from expanded fossil fuel burning "may be so severe as to leave no other choice."

"This is a very shaky conclusion but it's a possibility that needs to be taken seriously," said Dr. Roger Revelle, chairman of the committee which studied the problem.

HE CALLED FOR a $20 million-plus annual research effort so climatic effects of an atmosphere far richer in carbon dioxide will be known 50 years from now when the problem starts getting serious.

In the meantime, the noted researcher from Harvard University and the University of California at San Diego said it probably would be all right to use more coal for the next 30 years "but we can't get the coal habit if these climatic effects turn out deleterious."

Burning coal releases carbon that has been locked in the ground for eons.

The council, research arm of the National Academy of Sciences, said continued fossil fuel use and growing energy needs probably will increase the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere four to eight times by the year 2000 to 2150. That extra carbon dioxide probably would last at least 1,000 years.

EXTRA CARBON dioxide in itself is not harmful to people, but acts like a greenhouse in the atmosphere, trapping the sun's heat and warming the air at levels closest to ground.

The geophysics study committee said a four to eight fold increase in carbon dioxide in 175 to 200 years might result in an 11 to 16-degree Farenheit increase in the mean global temperature. This would return Earth to a climate like that which existed in the Mesozoic era 70 to 100 million years ago.

Such temperatures would have profound effects.

Ocean waters would become warmer with a resulting rise in sea levels of three feet that might flood low-lying metropolitan areas.

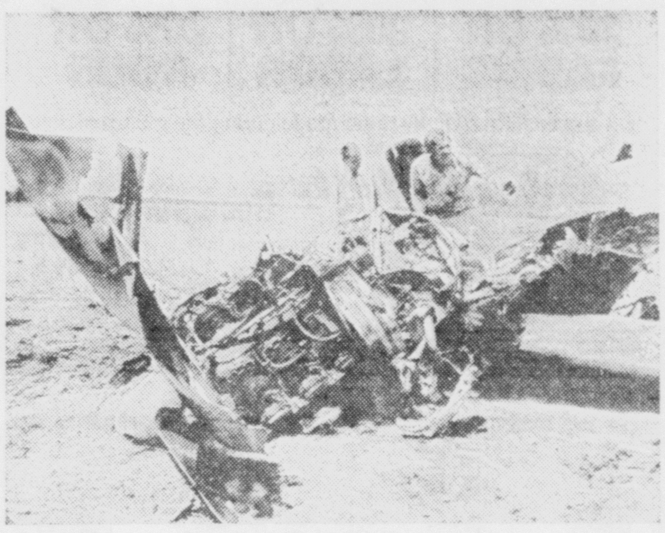
Some sea ice would melt, but the committee said it is impossible to predict what would happen to the polar ice caps.

FROST-FREE growing seasons would move northward in the Northern Hemisphere and summer temperatures in middle latitudes might become so high that the corn belt in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Missouri would have to be moved into Canada.

Air richer in carbon dioxide would help plant growth, and there would be more rain. Increased evaporation, however, might wipe out benefits to agriculture from the increased precipitation.

The report said the most serious effects of possible climate changes could be felt along boundaries of arid and semiarid regions.

"The world society could probably adjust itself, given sufficient time and a sufficient degree of international cooperation," the report said. "But over shorter times, the effects might be adverse, perhaps even catastrophic."



HOMICIDE investigators for the Omaha, Neb., police department comb the wreckage of a Beachcraft Bonanza single-engine plane that crashed in a wheat field near Eppley Air Field in Omaha. Three unidentified men were killed in the crash Sunday.

Man, 30, charged in hacking murders

MIAMI (UPI) — Police charged a 30-year-old weightlifter Sunday with hacking a man to death with a hatchet and strangling the man's wife, later dumping both bodies into waters near Key Largo. The victims of the double slaying were identified as Ronald Folks, 30, and his wife Donna, 23. Arrested on two counts of first degree murder was Mark Sanford Eason, 30, who shared with the Folks a duplex apartment in Coconut Grove where the slayings took place, police said. Neighbors reported "a terrifying scream" from Folks while he was mowing the grass at about 9 a.m. Saturday. They told police, who arrived on the scene a few minutes later, that they saw Eason "chopping something" which he then wrapped in a blue and white bedspread and lifted into the trunk of his late model car.

Puerto Rico is 25 years old

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) — A bitterly divided Puerto Rico celebrates its 25th anniversary as a U.S. commonwealth Monday — an unhappy birthday for bickering political factions who agree only that the island is on the road to ruin. The ruling pro-statehood party and the opposition procommonwealth party will hold rival celebrations. Today is an official holiday marking the island's compact with the U.S. Congress establishing the island's status as a free commonwealth associated with the United States. Gov. Carlos Romero Barcelo's New Progressive party favors eventual statehood, but it is hard pressed to come up with a working economic plan much different from that of the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic party thrown out of power in last November's elections.

150 Koreans hurt in 2-train crash

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — A speeding express train rammed a passenger train parked at a small provincial railway station Sunday, killing or injuring about 150 people heading for country vacations, police said. Police said they suspected the engineer aboard the express train might have fallen asleep and overlooked a signal light that warned he was on a collision course. At least 17 persons died and at least 130 were injured, more than 30 of them seriously, police said. At least 10 persons were trapped inside a car whose doors were broken in the crash. Authorities said they feared the death toll would rise. The trains crashed at midmorning at Jitan, about 100 miles southeast of Seoul. The parked train had stopped at the station to wait for the express to pass.

Sri Lanka mob violence spreads

DUNAGAHA, Sri Lanka (UPI) — A mob of men hacked a girl to death in a nearby village and another gang tried to kidnap a former cabinet minister Sunday in spreading post-election violence that has left 30 persons dead since Friday. The violence spread Sunday from the central mountains areas of this island republic to its northern regions, police sources said. Sri Lanka's official radio said a curfew imposed Saturday in the central region and area surrounding Colombo, the capital, had been extended another day and to the northern regions. Mobs in this village 10 miles north of Colombo tied a man to a tree by his heels, dunked a supporter of the former government in a barrel of green paint and destroyed nearly 100 homes, shops and markets in rioting Sunday.

Instant voter signup bill may pass on compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A watered-down version of President Carter's instant voter registration plan faces a showdown in the House this week and public financing of senatorial campaigns is expected to evoke a filibuster in the Senate.

A compromise between House leaders and Vice President Walter Mondale, chief architect of the administration's election reform plans, may squeeze through the voter registration bill.

Carter's original proposal allowing people to register at the polls on election day beginning next year narrowly was approved in committee. But it was so sure of being beaten on the House floor that Speaker Thomas O'Neill would not call it up for a vote.

FACED WITH THAT problem, Mondale agreed to make the plan optional in each state instead of mandatory and also to grant states power to decide what identification a voter must produce for instant registration.

Those changes have enhanced — but not ensured prospects of passage.

Other items on the House agenda this week are completion of the omnibus farm bill, a bill providing a $2.65-per-hour minimum wage, and extension of "black lung" benefits for coal miners.

IN THE SENATE, taxpayer subsidies for Senate campaigns face a determined GOP filibuster which will last all week and maybe longer. Under an agreement reached by Senate leaders, a motion to cut debate will not be voted on until Friday.

Senate GOP leader Howard Baker predicted nearly solid Republican opposition to the bill with "substantial" support from Democrats, and that could make it hard to round up the 60 votes needed to curb the filibuster.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said if the first attempt to cut off debate fails Friday, he would try again the following week. He gave no indication he would be willing to surrender despite a backlog of other bills.

Under the bill, a Senate candidate would have a spending ceiling of $250,000 plus 10 cents times the voting population of his state. He would receive a direct grant from the government of 25 cents of the ceiling and every contribution of $100 or less would be matched by the government.

Johnstown, Pa. gets warning of new flood

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — Residents of beleaguered Johnstown and the villages dotting the Conemaugh River Valley were warned Sunday of possible new flash floods. Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline said five dams were being monitored closely for possible overflowing.

The National Weather Service issued a flash flood watch effective Sunday night through today for most of western Pennsylvania. Flooding is possible and precautions should be taken, the bureau said.

Officials said 51 persons were confirmed dead and 100 missing as a result of last Wednesday's sudden flood in the valley caused in part by the bursting of the Laurel Run, Sandy Run, and Peggy Run dams on Conemaugh River tributaries.

Andy Bowser, leading a pack of volunteer firefighters searching for decomposed bodies in the Soloman Run housing project, said the bodies were causing odors.

"Our best method here is to smell and snoop," Bowser said.

Kline said he believed all dams were structurally sound now.

"If it rains, we may have some problems just in normal overflowing," said Kline. "As far as I know, our people say they're structurally all right. We've done a thorough job of inspecting bridges and dams."

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

Today on TV

Mini-series—new era in programming

The weak offering of new network programs for the fall and the failure of most new series to survive last season is signaling the end of one era and the beginning of a new one in television.

By the looks of things, the traditional weekly series has just about run its course and is giving way to a potentially more interesting and dramatically worthwhile format — the mini-series.

The regular series is actually bringing about its own demise. The idea mill has gone dry, leaving regular programming predictable and uncreative.

There are only a handful of storyline molds left: the social protecter who attempts to right every wrong, the young people or widows and divorcees struggling to make it on their own, the situation comedy families who provide a platform for poking fun at every imaginable deviation of norm, and the fantasy adventurers.

ONLY ONE QUARTER of the 20 programs introduced last fall will return for the 1977-78 television season, the most successful of which is ABC's "Charlie's Angels" whose major attraction is sex appeal.

Actually, television has never been in such sad shape in the regular programming department. The nostalgic exploits of overgrown greasers and lettermen in"Happy Days" and "Laverne and Shirley"

"ROOTS" SET OFF

continue to captivate television audiences throughout the country. They are the same viewers who still get a kick out of "All in the family" and "The Jeffersons." But, how much longer do you think even those veteran shows can continue to attract good ratings?

Television viewers no longer have the time or the patience to follow the continued adventures of comedy characters. Viewing habits are becoming as irregular for many Americans as their lifestyle.

And so, television is having to prompt its own change. The answer to the complacency and redundancy that seems to typify prime time television seems to be the mini-series and dramatic specials.

Ongoing, weekly dramas such as "Upstairs, Downsatirs," "The Pallisers" and "The Forsythe Saga" have been well received on public broadcasting stations during the past few years.

LAST YEAR, ABC picked up on the idea of multipart dramas by airing a television adaptation of "Rich Man, Poor Man" in weekly installments. The network followed it up in January with an unprecedented eight consecutive nights of "Roots." The record-breaking ratings the show garnered has set off an interest in mini-series.

The growing importance of special programming is evident as all three networks give their mini-series and dramatic specials equal billing with their new regular series for the fall season.

The titles of mini-series and specials the networks have planned read like the best sellers off a library shelf. There will be adaptations of novels by Arthur Hailey and Harold Robbins, James T. Farrell's "Studs Lonigan," Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," Irving Wallace's "The Word," John Ehrlichman's "The Company" and John Dean's "Blind Ambition."

There will be intrigue wih a Dashiell Hammet mystery, bittersweet love with Kay Summersby's "Past Forgetting: My Love Affair with Dwight D. Eisenhower," and painful remembering with the likes of "Holocaust" and "King," the story of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Television viewers can expect the constant preempting of regular programs for the much heralded showing of each of these and many other special events during the new fall season.

THE NETWORK masterminds obviously feel there is little to lose by bumping their regular series for these dramatic monuments which, in general, seem much more stimulating and thought-provoking.

This new train of thought seems to disclaim the one-time principle in television that the average viewer is a creature of habit who enjoys regular weekly programming and its predictable characters and storyline.

That may still be the case for some age groups and some geographic regions of the country but, for the most part, people want something different and unusual when they finally settle into a comfortable chair across the lvving room from the television set eac night.

The transition being made to less rigid and sterile programming is a painful one for television executives and viewers, but it is a change for the better.

Television is fulfilling a purpose when it can dramatically reach people with the story of Olympic Gold Medal winner Wilma Rudolph one minute, entertain them with the making of "Gone With the Wind" the next and delight them with a sprinkling of sophisticated comedy in between.

ONE THING WE don't need more of in prime time is a line-up of nonsensical comedy that does nothing but spark laughter at the expense of others' weaknesses and shortcomings.

I'd like to think that television in the future will become more like a precious book in which every item is a colorful, informative, entertaning work that prompts people to take a good look at themselves and the world through tears and laughter.

If there was ever any hopeful indication that television can one day reach a higher plateau, it is certainly the increased popularity and prominence of mini-series and dramatic specials.

It is too easy for television bosses and viewers to simply accept the tube as a mindless, laugh-a-minute medium that is largely a circus of sight and sound.

The betterment of television, and particularly of prime time programming, will depend on the demands for better content that come from viewers and fortitude on the part of the networks to air shows that are more novel and worthwhile.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• The last of the pilot shows of "Shields and Yarnell" airs at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2. The show stands a good chance of returning to television as a mid-season replacement in January 1978.

• Terrific films include: "The Maltese Falcon," the Humphrey Bogart classic at 8 p.m. on Channel 9, "Too Hot To Handle" with Clark Gable and Myrna Loy at 8 p.m. on Channel 32 and Jean Simmons as "Young Bess" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

How TV shows will fare a matter of who, where

around a major city like Chicago are more familiar with crime and may be attracted to action dramas of that sort more than people in the rural areas," Keramidas said. "But people in less populated areas that are removed from major cities seem to be regular fans of shows like 'Little House on the Prairie' and "The Waltons.' "

Although the information compiled by Nielsen is limited to prime time (7 to 10 p.m.) programming, "The Brady Bunch," which is aired from 5 to 6 p.m. weekdays on Channel 32 during the regular television season, is one of the most popular shows with youngsters in the Chicago area.

Similarly, WGN-TV, Channel 9's, Sunday newscast at 10 a.m. rates as the most popular show with Chicago area men 50 years of age and older and the fifth most popular show with Chicago area women 50 years and older. Because the newscast is not in prime time, it does not appear on the Nielsen charts.

The reason for the popularity of the WGN newscast may be that it is the only news show in the Chicago area late Sunday night with a half hour of local news. The network owned and operated stations in Chicago usually have 15 minutes of local news and 15 minutes of national news.

"Another thing to keep in mind," said one Nielsen official, "is that 'Lawrence Welk' airs from 9 to 10 p.m. Sundays on Channel 9 and is still very popular with persons in the Chicago area who are 50 and older. It makes for an excellent lead-in into the 10 p.m. newscast."

TELEVISION DRAMATIC specials, weekend sports and daytime soap operas, although not represented in the Nielsen charts accompanying this article, also fare very well with Chicago area viewers.

People with higher incomes have less time to watch television and as a result are more selective about what they watch. Lower income groups with fewer outside interests and less money for expensive leisure activities watch a lot of television, Nielsen experts say.

The bold viewer digs into the "Six Million Dollar Man" and viewers who consider themselves affectionate watch "Welcome Back, Kotter," according to a Target Group Index study used by the networks. The study is a survey in which viewers are asked to classify themselves according to what they watch on television.

The study has determined that viewers who consider themselves creative, dominating, egocentric and frank watch the "ABC Sunday Night Movie."

Every American household has the television on an average of seven hours a day. "That means that people have to feel something about what they're watching and have reasons for their preferences," Keramidas said.

Police didn't protect us: marchers

by United Press International

Leaders of a black civil rights group that tried to march into the racially troubled Marquette Park area charged police allowed the marchers to be victims of violence.

"They (police) allowed us to be assaulted," said the Rev. Edgar Jackson, a leader of the Martin Luther King Jr. Coalition, one of 27 persons arrested Saturday following a violent confrontation sparked when about 20 blacks marched into the area.

At least 24 persons were injured, none believed to be seriously hurt, police and area hospital officials said.

AT LEAST 10 autos and a Chicago Transit Authority bus were damaged. Three of the autos were overturned after black motorists fled from bands of white assailants.

Police attempted to halt the march before it got started at the King Coalition headquarters about 1½ miles from the sprawling park in a racially changing Southwest Side neighborhood — the scene of racial strife for more than a decade.

The march was called both to protest alleged discrimination in neighborhood housing and the alleged beatings of blacks in the predominantly white park.

Comr. William Buckney, deputy police superintendent, told about 35 prospective marchers police had been told Friday night the march had been canceled. About 700 officers scheduled for extra duty at the park had been called off.

Officers arrested four marchers, charging them with disorderly conduct, and a scuffle ensued between marchers and police.

VIOLENCE ERUPTED when a phalanx of about 1,000 white youths gathered at the northeast corner of the park and began hurling bottles and bricks at black motorists.

In one incident, police rescued a terrified black motorist when young whites smashed his car windows. A flurry of stones caused another auto to smash into a light post. Police rescued two injured black occupants.

A CTA bus driver was struck in the back of the neck by a rock thrown through the windshield.

Jackson, released on $35 bond, said Saturday night, "The people want to march next Saturday.

"Our lawyers will be consulting to see if our (marching) permits are still valid," he promised, "because the police denied us our rights."

Hospital patients' garden grows with therapeutic care

by KURT BAER

It's not easy for Michael Johansson, a soft-spoken boy with blond hair and a winning smile, to operate from a wheelchair.

His head and neck are restrained by a brace; his hands and arms move with uncertainty.

Mike is struggling to regain his strength and coordination in a physical therapy program at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

IT IS THE THIRD hospital he has been in and this summer it offers something unique — a table-top vegetable garden specially designed for wheelchair and handicapped patients.

The garden is sprouting tomatoes, onions, chives, strawberries, radishes, carrots and cucumbers. There are flowering plants as well.

Patients in the psychiatric and rehabilitation units of the hospital have been watering and weeding the garden for several weeks and recently they have begun to taste the fruits of their labor. Some 4-inch radishes have been pulled from the carefully cultivated soil.

"The only gardening I did at home was to cut the grass every week and maybe trim some bushes," Mike said as he carefully broke up sun-hardened soil around strawberry plants with a gardener's trowel.

SOME OTHER patients, such as Elsie Popp, are experienced gardeners who know the importance of digging weeds and regular watering.

Merl Cohn, director of therapeutic recreation at Lutheran General, said gardening provides an opportunity for patients to develop skills in an outdoor, natural evnironment.

"Each patient's individual need gets attention. Strengthening muscles, coordinating hand movements or increasing a patient's ability to stand," Ms. Cohn said.

Patients also develop a feeling of responsibility and a sense of accomplishment keeping plants healthy. She hopes the attitude will be transferred to a feeling of responsibility for each patient's personal health care as well.

"WE TRY TO GET each person out at least once a week. There are five different programs using the garden," Ms. Cohn said, four psychiatric units plus the rehabilitation medicine patients.

The special garden was designed and built by the hospital's maintenance department and is a reflection of the hospital's concern for treating the total patient, Ms. Cohn said.

Gardening is only one activity in the therapeutic recreation program, which is intended to help overcome the confined feeling many patients have when they are hospitalized and to help them readjust to normal activities.

Trips to supermarkets and shopping centers, baseball and basketball games, movies and theaters, as well as participation in miniature golf, bowling and skating have been used.

As for the first year experiment in outdoor gardening, most of the time it's better than being inside, said Mike. But it can also get to be hot, hard work.

Jaworski pick good for probe

The appointment of Leon Jaworski as chief investigator to the House Ethics Committee is good news to those who want to see Korean influence buying in Congress fully and fairly investigated.

Jaworski brings to the Congressional investigation the well-earned reputation of the tough and thorough prosecutor who pursued the Watergate scandal all the way to the Oval Office.

Now, as leader of the investigation into the "Koreagate" scandal which is rumored to involve more than 100 members of Congress, Jaworski will once again have the chance to demonstrate his uncompromising fairness in difficult circumstances.

The Korean scandal has been smoldering in Congress for months. The Ethics Committee has been accused of foot-dragging, and one chief counsel for the committee has already quit.

Another investigation is being conducted by the Justice Department, but that probe seems to have been going almost as slowly as the House's own action.

The case is, if anything, even more difficult than the Watergate scandal. Many persons apparently are involved, and intricate schemes to ensure Korea good standing on Capitol Hill were carried out.

Failure to properly complete the investigation would strike a serious blow to Jaworski's reputation. In addition, it would add credence to those who still contend that Richard Nixon was driven from office for partisan reasons and not because of the Watergate crimes.

It is precisely because Jaworski brings impeccable credentials and a noted place in history into the Korean probe that he is so well-suited for a difficult task.

Jaworski has nothing to gain by a whitewash but has his reputation to lose. Therefore, even the most skeptical Congressional critic may rest easy while he guides the investigation.

Flood victims rebuild

Flood waters ravaged Johnstown, Pa., last week for the third time in less than 90 years.

Nature has once again proven its force. And the surviving residents of Johnstown are once again proving man's indomitable spirit.

The flood, which left an unknown number of dead and countless persons homeless, was a grim repeat of past scenes for the steel town of 42,000.

In 1889 a flood nearly wiped out Johnstown. And after a 1936 flood, millions of dollars were poured into flood control measures in the Conemaugh River valley.

None of those measures was enough to counter a storm which dumped nine inches of water on the area in eight hours.

President Carter has declared the flood site a disaster area, making it eligible for federal aid. Residents are already manning the bulldozers and shovels in the rebuilding process.

Some will ask why the flood survivors are bothering to rebuild. Barring some major new technological advance, the floods will probably return.

The answer to that question lies in the same impulse that restored Chicago after the 1871 fire and San Francisco after the 1906 earthquake. People do not easily leave their homes. And, even if they know disaster may strike again, they are willing to live with the knowledge that fate rules their lives.

Rickover's atomic vision won rank against odds

Jim Bishop

He's 77 now. His stride is brisk because he wills it to be. The pale face is perpetually angry. The brown eyes conceal pain. Hyman Rickover is the only man ever to have defeated his own Navy and then rebuilt it.

In the last year of World War I, the son of Abraham and Rose Rickover became a cadet in the Naval Academy at Annapolis. He was Jewish. He had floppy ears and a ramrod spine. He sought few as friends, and fewer sought him.

He drew his bachelor of science degree in 1922 and dutifully tossed his white cap in the air with the other U.S. Navy ensigns. The Navy had no official position on Jewish officers. Unofficially, they were an embarrassment.

WHEN HE ASKED for an appointment to postgraduate work at Columbia University, the Navy was glad to grant it. Rickover wanted a master's degree in electrical engineering. They would "lose" him for seven years. Most important, it would keep his seagoing experience to a minimum.

Promotions come from decks, not desks. In 1929, he asked for submarine duty aboard the old S-boats. He breathed the diesel fumes of the S-9, the S-48. On rotation, they put him aboard the old battleships Nevada and New Mexico.

Rickover had a problem. He didn't know when to quit. In peacetime, promotion is slow; in his case getting a second stripe required ages. He was dumped into the navy yard at Cavite in the Philippines. As World War II started, they made Charles Lockwood admiral in charge of submarines in the Pacific and assigned Hyman Rickover to the Bureau of Ships at the Pentagon.

He had a giant intellect and enormous vision, but the Navy was certain that there had never been a Jewish admiral and there wasn't going to be. Several of his Annapolis classmates had two-star rank.

THE NAVY MADE him "inspector general of the 19th Fleet" as the war ended. He was 45, going nowhere. The collision course between the Navy and Rickover was obvious, though nobody would acknowledge it.

The Americans had exploded an atom bomb. Rickover's background in engineering told him that this massive energy could be tamed. He asked for a transfer to Oak Ridge, Tennessee. It was far from sea, but there scientists began work on atomic energy.

Rickover could see huge submarines which could remain underwater for two months. He could also see huge attack carriers which could roam the seven seas without refueling. As the missile program developed, he wondered if they could be sent flying into the skies from under water.

The Navy promoted him to rear admiral. He had beaten them soundly. "Their" Navy was scrapped. Rickover's began to build. In 1952, he gave a little of his time to interview a young officer who had asked for submarine duty.

HIS NAME WAS Jimmy Carter Jr. The admiral asked Carter for his youthful notions about the future of the U.S. Navy. He listened, nodded, and said rhetorically, "Why not the best?"

The old admiral constructed his first automic submarine: USS. Nautilus. He pressed on, designing atomic reactors. Carter's father died and he resigned his naval commission. He had to oversee a peanut farm.

Rickover got his third star. Then his fourth. That was the final step. He retired. But the Navy now hungered for him: he was placed on active-inactive duty so that he could continue to develop the Minitz class carriers and Polaris submarines.

FIVE YEARS AGO, his wife Ruth died. At the age of 74, Admiral Rickover married Eleanore Bednowicz. Last year, his lost submariner ran for president of the United States. The admiral remained silent.

Carter won. And wrote a little book called, "Why Not the Best?" He invited his old boss to lunch at the White House. At the age of 77, Rickover acknowledged that the one-time boy lieutenant was now his commander-in-chief.

The President said that Rickover "has had a profound effect on my life, perhaps more than anyone else except my own parents." The admiral is no smiler. He placed a plaque on Carter's desk. It states: "O, God, Thy Sea is so Great and My Boat is So Small . . ."

FBI old-timers have a candidate from Georgia

by MARTHA ANGLE and ROBERT WALTERS

A behind-the-scenes power struggle involving two senior officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation has emerged as a major element in President Carter's politically sensitive search for a new FBI director.

The central figures in the heated feud are both among the finalists in the competition for the job of leading the bureau: John A. Mintz, the FBI's general counsel for the past three years, and Neil John Welch, a veteran of 26 years of FBI service and currently special agent in charge of its Philadelphia field office.

Welch's name was one of five forwarded to Carter for the final winnowing process by the nine-member selection committee appointed by the President earlier in the year to screen all candidates for the position.

MINTZ, 41, WAS not on the official list of five finalists submitted to the White House, but he reportedly was the favorite of businessman Irving S. Shapiro, chairman of the screening committee; Mary C. Lawton, the Justice Department official in charge of providing staff support to the selection committee, and Clarence M. Kelley, the outgoing FBI director.

Even more important, in the weeks since the committee made public its recommendations, Mintz has emerged as the candidate of many old-line senior officials of the FBI, most of them proteges of the late J. Edgar Hoover.

That "old boy network" has dominated the FBI for decades, and its need for an "establishment"-oriented insider is crucial in the post-Hoover era, when the bureau has become the object of derision, criticism and lawsuits alleging a widespread pattern of extralegal activities.

The four contenders officially recommended by the screening committee in addition to Welch were John J. Irwin Jr., an associate justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court; John K. Van de Kamp, the Los Angeles County district attorney; Harlington A. Wood Jr., a judge on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit in Chicago; and William Lucas, the Wayne County, Mich. sheriff in Detroit.

THE CHANCES OF Irwin, Van de Kamp or Wood being selected are impaired by the enormous pressure from bureau "insiders" for selection of one of their own as head of the controversy-wracked organization.

Moreover, if Carter is determined to reform the bureau, an FBI veteran familiar with the FBI's personalities, policies and politics would stand a far better chance than an outsider of bringing about the needed major overhaul.

Welch and Lucas, an FBI special agent in the mid-1960s, were the only two men on the list of five finalists with bureau experience. But Lucas is black — a major liability within the politically conservative FBI "establishment" dominated by white males.

Welch, 51, is white, but he is distrusted within the FBI hierarchy because of his contempt for the widespread counter-intelligence program (Cointelpro, aimed at real and imagined political dissidents) and the "black bag jobs" (unauthorized break-ins) which have so badly tarnished the FBI's image.

INSTEAD, WELCH has emphasized a "quality case" program which focuses on investigation of organized crime, white collar crime and corruption in government, labor and business. That's precisely the direction in which the entire FBI ought to be heading.

But the "good old boys" within the bureau view the prospect of a savvy reformer in the director's office as a very real threat to their hegemony. Even before the White House made public the list of the five official finalists, Mintz surfaced as an unofficial but strong sixth contender.

Mintz happens to be a native of Carter's home state of Georgia, a fact FBI veterans hope will help as they press hard for his acceptance — and Welch's rejection — at the White House.

'Why spend on survey?'

As residents of Elk Grove Twp., Dist. 59, with two children attending Dist. 59 schools, we would like to comment on the item which appeared on July 12, "Dist. 59 'Basics' Program Nixed."

First of all, why is the district spending money they don't have on unnecessary surveys? We are tired of surveys. We were already asked once about alternative education and the result showed that this area is basically pleased with the education the children are receiving.

In regard to this last survey, again about alternative education (when are they going to give up?), we would like to point out, first of all, that we did not receive a copy of the survey (we have two children in Dist. 59); secondly, we understand that the response to the survey was to be sent to a board member's home and not to the administration office, which hardly makes it an official survey; thirdly, and most important of all, we resent being called "stupid" because we did not reply. How could we, when we never received one? Besides, we already were asked once, and we expressed our feelings on the subject. When will they accept the fact that we are pleased with the education the children are receiving? Why don't they concentrate their efforts in trying to solve the money situation of the district?

On plutonium age

A recent letter by Ms. Catherine Quigg (Fence Post, July 11), concerning plutonium and the breeder reactor, which produces plutonium, was factually incorrect and misleading.

In her letter, Ms. Quigg expresses her concern that building the breeder reactor in Tennessee will usher the world into the plutonium age. The fact is that the world has been in the plutonium age for some time now. France, Russia, West Germany and Japan all have operating breeder reactors and their commercial programs are in a much more developed state than the U.S. program.

In her letter, Ms. Quigg states "If the U.S. halts its efforts now to build breeder reactors, other nations are likely to follow our lead." Such a conclusion is without foundation. The French, German and Russian governments have all recently explicitly stated that they will continue and speed up their commercial fast breeder reactor development programs in reply to the announcement that the U.S. would discontinue its commercialization effort. Thus, the wishful thinking by Ms. Quigg has already been proven completely false by the actual actions of the foreign governments concerned.

GOP hounds are already on trail of Jerry Brown's '78 election bid

By NEA/London
Economist News Service

SAN DIEGO — Republican hopefuls are campaigning already to unseat California's governor, Jerry Brown, in the November 1978 election. Five candidates have made their intentions clear, with more undoubtedly due to announce in the 10 months remaining before the primary election on June 8.

The governor himself appears to consider his chief rival to be the youthful mayor of San Diego, Peter Wilson.

Wilson, 43, was elected to his second term as mayor of California's second largest city by a two-to-one landslide, and remains immensely popular. He is — rare breed for a Republican — a reformer. He has tightened the rules on campaign contributions for San Diego's municipal elections and earned himself a reputation by appointing a committee of lawyers to scrutinize potential contributors to his own campaign.

HE HAS WON widespread public support, despite offending property developers, by putting strict curbs on San Diego's growth: building is being encouraged only in densely populated areas of the city to prevent the urban sprawl many find abhorrent in Los Angeles, their mammoth neighbor 100 miles to the north.

Since then he has won favor for keeping San Diego's tax rate 27 per cent below the average of California's 20 largest cities, and for icreasing the city's budget for the current fiscal year by only 4.4 per cent — less than the rate of inflation.

Before he can take on Gov. Brown, however, Wilson must win the endorsement of the conservative element of his own party, which remains faithful to Ronald Reagan, who, if his health holds up, seems strongly tempted to make another bid for the presidency in 1980.

WILSON WON the enmity of Reagan loyalists by serving as President Ford's campaign chairman in California, and by committing the unpardonable sin of publicly criticizing Reagan. But Reagan himself seems to have forgiven this and has pledged neutrality in the coming race.

Several of Reagan's most influential supporters, including some of his biggest financial backers, are working behind the scenes for Wilson. The former state controller, Houston Flournoy, who came within a hair's breadth of beating Brown in 1974, appears completely out of the running in 1978 and has already endorsed Wilson.

Still, the San Diego mayor is not as well known around the state, and particularly in the northern counties, as Evelle Younger, the state's attorney general. Polls taken earlier this year showed that in a three-man race Younger would receive 42 per cent of the Republican vote, Edward Davis, the police chief of Los Angeles, 17 per cent, and Wilson only 11 per cent with 30 per cent undecided.

ALTHOUGH BETTER known than the others because he is a state official, Younger is not an exciting candidate. At 59, he would have less of a future in national politics than Wilson who, if elected governor, would automatically become one of the Republican party's most promising stars.

Davis is considered too right wing and too preoccupied with such social issues as battling homosexual rights to be a good prospect for the party.

So if Wilson can win his party's nomination he probably has the best chance of defeating Brown, but all the Republicans have the problem of making themselves known to 22 million Californians; this is the incumbent's greatest advantage.

ALTHOUGH CALIFORNIA traditionally accords its governors two terms, Wilson believes that Brown is vulnerable this year because of what he calls a growing public awareness of a gap between the governor's rhetoric and his performance.

He accuses Brown of dealing less in substance than in symbolism, citing his refusal to live in the state's newly built $11 million riverfront executive mansion, preferring to sleep on a mattress on the floor of a $250 a month apartment; disdaining a chauffeur-driven limousine in favor of a small economy car; and making symbolic overnight visits to a San Francisco tenement and to a rural farmhouse.

Wilson particularly blames the governor for creating a climate in which new businesses have been reluctant to come to California. He sees himself as the pro-business candidate and hopes to convince the voters that he can lower taxes, keep uppity public employes in their place, restrain urban sprawl and improve the tax climate for business.

Brown contends that whatever issues Wilson raises, he will be able to defuse them in the months ahead. He has taken steps to modify his anti-business image, attempting to lure a Japanese carmaker to California, and has endorsed the concept of a liquid natural gas plant in the state. So perhaps Wilson is already being heard.

Propaganda gets free ride

Funny Mobil cartoons not comic for press

Charles B. Seib

Mobil Oil, whose infatuation with the media knows no bounds, has come up with something new for the jaded newspaper reader: funny cartoons with a hidden commercial.

Now, if you are fortunate enough to subscribe to a weekly newspaper or a small daily, you can not only laugh at a cartoon but wonder whether you are getting a secret message from Mobil. Thus a company that is already famous for its editorial ads and that has been thinking of buying a newspaper for its very own, can claim credit for journalistic breakthrough.

This is the way it works: Mobil sends clever, well-drawn cartoons to about 5,000 small newspapers. The cartoons are drawn by top artists and New Yorkerish in tone. The first batch of three went out some weeks ago and more are to follow in September.

MONTH THE FIRST was a cartoon by Roy Doty in which a man is talking to some friends while he uses an ax to hack to pieces the hose that runs to his kid's backyard pool. In the foreground, a woman speaks: "He's explaining how breaking up the oil companies would work."

Get it? A touch of humor to ease down a lump of propaganda.

Another was drawn by Robert Weper. A store clerk is explaining a new game to a customer: "It's a real challenge. You have to get the oil out of the ground and to market through this maze of federal restrictions, state restrictions and local restrictions."

Judy Lynn Prince, Mobil's media specialist, says the cartoons are designed to convey Mobil's feeling that "the government is too strong and industry is being over-regulated."

IN SENDING OUT the cartoons, Prince said in a note to editors that they make "editorial statements" in a "brash, off-beat, occasionally lighthearted manner." "If you like the cartoons," she said, "feel free to use them."

Although the mailing clearly comes from Mobil, the cartoons themselves bear no identification except for a tiny pair of concentric circles in one corner. These resemble the "O" in the Mobil trademark, but not one person in a million would make the connection. Prince says the purpose of the mark is to assist her clipping service in finding published cartoons.

Mobil people point out that editors can identify the cartoons from Mobil. But few do. Ms. Prince says several newspapers printed feature stories saying, in effect, "look what we got from Mobil," but in all the other 70-odd clippings she had received, the cartoons were used without identification.

An editor of a Pennsylvania daily told me he was planning to use the Doty cartoon with an editorial he was writing on the oil industry, but he didn't plan to identify the source. "There is a tendency to discredit anything the corporations put out," he said, and "it would tend to weaken the point of my editorial."

IF THE USE OF the cartoons without identifying Mobil as the source is open to criticism — and I am convinced that it is — the editors who publish them must take the blame. Mobil is merely accepting any free rides it can get.

Editor & Publisher, a newspaper trade magazine, noted in an article on the cartoons that Herbert Schmertz, Mobil's vice president for public affairs, recently asserted in a letter to news persons: "The public has a right to know who is behind any advocacy effort, and for whom the advocate is speaking. That applies to material from a corporation, or from a group that labels itself as 'public interest'."

That statement was made in connection with some anti-Mobil ads placed by a group that did not identify itself, and Schmertz says it has no application to the cartoons. Editors know they come from Mobil, he says, and there is no attempt to dissuade them from identifying the source.

"If this is an issue," he adds, "then every newspaper has a problem in the use of press releases without identifying the source."

MOST NEWSPAPERS don't use unidentified press releases without identifying source, but Schmertz has a point. Unlabeled propaganda does find its way into the press. A few days ago, for example, the New York Times reported that some small newspapers have been publishing Republican party press releases as news items, with no mention of where they came from.

Schmertz also maintains that not identifying the source of the cartoons is no worse than the use of unidentified sources in news stories — a practice he calls, with reason, "one of the greatest abuses in the press today."

He has a point there, too, although I think he is reaching. Nevertheless, there is something particluarly sneaky about cartoons that pose as entertainment but carry a hidden corporate message.

Maybe what the news business needs is a truth-in-packaging code. What a fascinating document that would be.

Sabotage threat to oil line pushes protection plans

by LEWIS BRIGHAM

With 430 miles of the 800-mile Alaskan pipeline exposed above ground, it is very vulnerable to sabotage.

Larry Carpenter, director of community relations for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., which built the pipeline, says it would be almost impossible to protect the entire pipeline around the clock: "It would be like trying to cover every mile between New York and Chicago."

To overcome this logistical problem, Alyeska's security forces have coordinated plans for protecting the line with the 125-member Alaska State Police and the federal government's Departments of the Army, Commerce, and Transportation.

THE ALASKAN STATE troopers operate from helicopters as well as patrol cars, cruising along the highway network that Alyeska built paralleling the pipeline.

The Army has some 3,000 men stationed at nearby Ft. Wainwright. And Eielson Air Force Base, 23 miles south of Fairbanks, was originally planned as a B52 base, but now has several squadrons of fighter planes as well, Carpenter said.

During the 1975-76 winter, the Army used Alaska to stage a training maneuver known as Operation Jack Frost, using Ft. Wainwright as its headquarters. Ostensibly, the operation was to acclimate troops to Arctic conditions. But Carpenter said the real reason for the exercise was to devise anti-sabotage techniques to protect the pipeline.

Some 600 Alyeska employes involved in the pipeline's construction will continue on during the operational period, with security as a major responsibility.

A KEY FIGURE will be Robert Sunberg, former chief of police in Fairbanks, who took over as Alyeska's manager of security during construction and will hold down the same job now that the oi line has moved into transmission.

For security reasons, Carpenter said he could not be too specific about surveillance and monitoring procedures except to say that two contingency plans exist — one for domestic sabotage, the other covering attacks from foreign sources.

The most vulnerable areas along the line are the 12 pump stations, he said. But he agreed that any spot along the exposed line could be attacked as well. Asked whether a bullet from a high-powered rifle could penetrate the half-inch pipe's steel casing, Carpenter said "yes."

He quickly added, however, the qualification that a saboteur "would have to be awfully close to the pipe itself." And in such a case, he said, chances are that hot oil forced out throughout the bullet hole at a pressure of about 1,000 pounds per square inch would probably kill the saboteur in turn. As to an attempt with a bazooka or delayed bomb, Carpenter was less clear as to the consequences.

THUS FAR, he said, there has been only one real threat to the line: a note from an extortionist about six months ago, asking for "several thousand dollars, or he'd blow up one of the pump stations." According to Carpenter, the FBI picked up the extortionist at the money drop point and he is in prison. Why was the FBI involved? Because the U.S. mails were involved.

Carpenter, who also is a member of the Alaskan legislature, said that body recently passed a bill making malicious destruction of or tampering with the pipeline a felony. The U.S. Congress is considering a similar bill, he said.

If all these precautions were to fail, he said, Alyeska has provisions to bypass a damaged pump station or section of pipeline. "We have joints of pipe already electrostatically tested, which we can rapidly weld into the line in the event of damage.

Oswald: "While I am the oldest syndicated columnist, you happen to be the youngest. I have noted that there is a modern tendency to lead fourth best against notrump, provided your suit is headed by the jack or better. With a suit like 10-8-7-5-3 the modern lead is the 8."

Jim: "It certainly is and it certainly complicates the game for the ordinary player. It also complicates it for the expert, but if he can't handle complications he shouldn't consider himself an expert."

Oswald: "It does complicate things sometimes. On other occasions it really helps the defense."

Jim: "When modernist West opens the five of spades against South's normal three-notrump contract declarer ducks in dummy. East wins the trick with the queen and since he is sure that his partner has led from the jack he leads the king right back. Later on he gets in with the king of diamonds and the defense gathers in enough tricks to give poor South a headache."

Oswald: "Even without this convention an alert East would still get rid of that king of spades and hope for the best. The convention just made the play a cinch."

Ask Andy

Lots scream for ice cream in summertime

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Carlya Tucker, 11, of East Lansing, Mich., for her question:

HOW DID WE GET ICE CREAM?

Summertime's favorite food seems to be ice cream although frozen dairy products are tremendously popular all the year around. More than 1 billion gallons of the nutritious and refreshing dessert is produced in the United States every year. We enjoy ice cream in sodas, shakes, malts and sundaes, eat it like a sandwich between cookies and with pie and cake and devour it in cones and bars. As an average American, you sould be putting away about 23 quarts of ice cream each year. About half of the total you select is vanilla flavored, statistics say. Your second choice in flavors is chocolate with strawberry coming in third on the popularity scale.

We aren't sure who first came up with the idea of ice cream although we do know in 1295 Marco Polo brought back some recipes for water ice from China. In the 1600's, recorded European history tells us, people enjoyed a mixture of cream, spices and fruit that was frozen with snow and ice.

A type of ice cream was enjoyed by the American colonists in the early 1700's. It was strictly a luxury item and made at home.

A milk dealer by the name of Jacob Fussell established in 1871 in Baltimore, Md., the nation's first ice cream plant. By the early 1900's the delicious frozen product was available in larger volume and soda fountains blossomed across the nation. The World's Fair in St. Louis in 1904 had a brand-new invention: the ice cream cone. Ice cream bars were introduced to the public in 1921.

Food and drug laws regulate the standard for ice cream production today. At least 20 per cent of the ice cream's weight must be milk fat and other milk solids. Ice milk must contain 11 per cent of milk solids.

Sherbet, you may be surprised to learn, contains about twice as much sugar as does ice cream. It contains a minimum of two per cent milk solids, however.

A type of ice cream called mellorine, which contains 20 per cent milk solids along with coconut, cottonseed or soybean oil instead of milk fat, is being made today in about a quarter of the states in the United States.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to Susanne Townsend, 12, of Brampton, Ontario, Canada, for her question:

IS THERE AN INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE

A language called Esperanto is used by people in about 90 different countries, and if it can be said that an international language exists, this would certainly be it. But there is no great flocking of people at the present time to help make it a universal way of speech.

The language was devised by a Polish physician named L. I. Zamenhof who wrote under the pen name of Dr. Esperanto.

The language uses simple, uniform structures. The accent is always on the next to the last syllable of a word and each letter has only one sound. Adjectives end in a, adverbs end in e and nouns end in o. Root words are taken from Indo-European languages.

White-hot Sox blast Boston; fatten lead

BOSTON—Four is a number that looks pretty good to the White Sox these days.

The Sox won their fourth in a row Sunday, a 9-6 triumph over Fergie Jenkins and the Red Sox. And in doing so, pulled four games ahead of second-place Kansas City.

But then, three doesn't look so bad, either. For the fhird day in a row, the Sox ripped three home runs to continue their post All-Star break power parade.

THE WIN, the club's third straight since the Mid-Summer Classic, coupled with Royals' 3-1 loss to the Yankees, gives the Sox some breathing room going into the final game of the road trip and series here tonight. The edge over Kansas City will be welcome because after tonight's finale in Boston, the Sox will meet the Royals in seven games over the next two weeks.

The Sox held off a ninth-inning rally by the Bosox Sunday for the win as Francisco Barrios won his 10th game in 14 decisions with relief help from Dave Hamilton.

Ralph Garr homered and Eric Soderholm ripped two round trippers to pace the Sox offensive attack, which has produced 29 runs in the team's last three games.

The lead seesawed back and forth early as both clubs scored two runs in the first inning. Garr's homer in the second made it 3-2 but the Red Sox came back with a two-run homer by Fred Lynn in the third inning to make it 4-3. Carl Yastrzemski's homer had produced the first two Boston runs.

THE SOX regained the lead in the fourth on Soderholm's first homer, a two-run blast that made it 5-4. Single runs in the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth made it 9-4 with the final run coming on Soderholm's second home run.

Jenkins, who was charged with six runs, departed in the fifth with one out, a run in, and Oscar Gamble on second base. Lee picked Gamble off second, then retired Jim Spencer to end the inning.

Barrios settled down after the third and breezed along, giving up only three scattered hits and a walk before running into ninth-inning trouble.

After striking out Butch Hobson to open the final frame, Barrios' string of nine straight retired hitters was broken with a single by Denny Doyle, who advanced to second on a wild pitch. Barrios got Rick Miller to pop out to short, but lead-off man Rick Burleson singled in a run which chased Barrios, who was seeking his fifth complete game in a row.

HAMILTON CAME on and gave up singles to Lynn and Jim Rice, which produced the final Red Sox run, before getting Yastrzemski on a deep fly to center to end the game.

One pitch earlier, Hamilton hung a curve which Yaz pulled foul into the upper deck in right field.

Hamilton ended up earning a save, his fourth, as the Sox went 21 games over the .500 mark.

SOX SHORTS: Ralph Garr has now hit safely in 24 of his last 25 games . . The three home runs Sunday brings the team total to 116, just 22 short of the club season record of 138, set by the 1961 and '71 teams . . . Steve Stone (10-7) will pitch for the Sox tonight in the series finale, which will be the network regional televised game . . . Luis Tiant will throw for Boston . . . The Sox return home to launch a 10-game homestand, starting Tuesday night against Detroit.

Martin like prisoner waiting on death row

by GREG AIELLO

NEW YORK (UPI)—Billy Martin pulled on his pinstriped uniform in the New York Yankees' manager's office Sunday morning and said he felt like a man on death row.

Martin arrived at Yankee Stadium Saturday morning amid rumors that his job once again was in jeopardy. It reportedly had been offered to third base coach Dick Howser, who turned it down.

Martin, who met with reporters before the game against the Kansas City Royals Sunday, said the phone in his office rang about 11:40 a.m. and club president Gabe Paul summoned him to a meeting.

''GABE SAID nothing has changed," Martin told reporters.

Then Martin's phone rang.

"Uh oh," he said "Wait a minute."

But it was merely another false alarm.

Martin said Paul told him to pay no attention to the rumors. But asked whether he believed the Yankees had unsuccessfully looked around for another manager, Martin said, "I don't know, but I feel that might be right. I've got to believe that rumors don't just start."

He said he thought the latest crisis surrounding his job began following New York's 5-4, 10-inning loss Thursday night to the Milwaukee Brewers after the Yankees took a 4-0 lead into the ninth, threatening to sweep a doubleheader.

"It was a terrible game," Martin said. "I have to feel that might have done it. I was pretty upset too. It was the worst game I've ever seen, like watching a class C game."

MARTIN APPEARED on good spirits Sunday morning, a strikingly different mood than his sullen manner after Thursday night's doubleheader and the tears he reportedly shed Saturday when his job seemed in jeopardy.

"When I got fired in Minnesota I thought that was the worst thing that ever happened," he said. "Then it happened in Detroit and

Cubs in double-dip licking, rule NL East by half game

by ART MUGALIAN

By the time darkness set in at Wrigley Field Sunday, 26,500 unhappy, disgruntled fans had witnessed Exhibit A in the case against the Cubs and their chances for a National League pennant.

Exhibit A, in case you didn't know, is what is loosely referred to as a pitching staff. Seven members of the Cub army of arms trudged to the mound — some of them twice — during a doubleheader against Houston. For their troubles, they earned 10-6 and 6-4 losses, giving up 24 hits and five home runs to a team that was hitting .244 when it arrived in town.

Houston's first doubleheader victory of the season, coupled with Philadelphia's 7-4 win at San Diego, cut the Cub lead in the NL East to one-half game.

ADDING TO the insult was the superb pitching of one-time Cub Joe Niekro, now 5-3 who knuckleballed his way to complete-game victory in the nightcap when it looked like the Cubs would make a chump out of him.

Niekro surrendered a quick run in the first and gave up Bobby Murcer's 14th homer in the third, a two-run shot that handed the Cubs a temporary 3-1 lead. But Art Howe's second homer in the fourth and doubles by Ed Herrmann and Roger Metzger kayoed Cub starter Steve Renko and tied the score, 3-3.

In the fifth, Cub reliever Donnie Moore let in the go-ahead run on Enos Cabell's double and Bob Watson's single.

A HUGE CROWD of 26,500 considering the weather, sat through a rain delay of an hour and one-half before the first game began. By the time the sun poked its head through the clouds, Houston reliever Joe Sambito had just about ended the Cubs hopes of catching up.

The Cubs appeased their fans, scoring in the bottom of the first to tie the game, 1-1, with a walk to Jose Cardenal, a balk and a hit by Bobby Murcer. Then, after the Astros had scored three more times in the third, the Cubs fought back for a pair in the fourth on long doubles by Larry Biittner and Murcer, a fielder's choice by Morales and a sacrifice fly off the bat of Manny Trillo.

But the Cubs effective pitchers were outnumbered by their ineffective ones, opening up with Ray Burris, the struggling righthander who started the contest and suffered his 10th loss against nine wins.

Burris was touched for a solo homer by Enos Cabel in the first, then allowed a double to Jose Cruz — one of four hits for Cruz — a walk to Bob Watson and a crashing three-run homer to Art Howe, all after two were out in the third.

HOWE WAS PLAYING for the first time since incurring an injury July 3. He later contributed a two-run single in the fifth off Burris' first reliever Pete Broberg who lasted just 2/3 of an inning. Cesar Cedeno followed with a two-run shot onto the catwalk in left and the Cubs were trailing 8-3 after only four and one-half innings.

Houston starter Gene Pentz wasn't destined to see the end of his third victory. He walked Ivan DeJesus with one away in the fifth and surrendered an RBI double to Cardenal. When Biittner smacked a line-drive homer, his seventh, into the seats in left, Astro manager Bill Virdon determined right then and there that Pentz needed help.

But Virdon wanted his righthander to get the victory, so he left him in to finish the inning. Pentz escaped despite giving up a single to Morales and walking Steve Ontiveros.

Sambito pitches the final four frames on a yeild of just two base hits, both of them coming at the start of the seventh to give the lefty his only nervous moment.

CARDENAL AND BIITTNER each lined singles off Sambito to put the tying runs on base, and Cub manager Herman Franks sent Murcer to the plate with orders to bunt. Mercer bunted a beauty, too, but Sambito made a nice play and forced Cardenal at third. He then got Morales on a called third strike and made Ontiveros ground out hard to the second baseman. The Cubs never had another base runner.

Paul Reuschel, who took the loss Saturday against Atlanta, pitched three perfect innings. Willie Hernandez, who pitched the ninth, allowed two runs on four hits.

RAINDROPS pelt players in the 16-inch State Softball Tournament at Rand Park in Des Plaines. Most of Sunday's action was washed out with play to resume Saturday at 9 a.m.

Bears unveil team tonight

by BOB GALLAS

The Bears, getting the jump on Monday Night Football, unveil their 1977 version of Walter Payton and Pals tonight at Soldier Field in a scrimmage coach Jack Pardee promises will be filled with plenty of passing.

The scrimmage will be the only one of the preseason for the Bears, who open the exhibition season Saturday against the Jets in Canton, Ohio. Admission today is $4 with the proceeds going to the Chicago Public League Athletic Fund.

The scrimmage will feature action at both ends of the field. The first string offense, quarterbacked by Bob Avellini, will test the second-string defense at one end, while the first-string defense will try to stop the second-line offense, quarterbacked by Mike Phipps, at the other.

BOTH OFFENSES will try to take it in from the 40-yard line in the controlled scrimmage with no kicking and quick whistles aimed at avoiding injuries.

Mike Adamle won't return to practice for at least another week as he is still recovering from a torn groin muscle suffered in a water-skiing accident, and Larry Schreiber saw his first action Saturday. Schreiber is recovering from off-season knee surgery.

"WE'VE GOT A lot of bumps and bruises and the legs are a little tired," said Pardee. The day off should do us a lot of good."

Gates open tonight at 5:30 with pregame entertainment by Andy the Clown, fire Twirler Touhy Farley, the Frisbee retrieving dog, Tex, plus the debut of the Honey Bears, a 28-woman dance ensemble, and Ben Arden's Big Bear Band.

The game itself will start at 7:30 with a fireworks show to follow at about 9:15.

Arlington at midway point

Arlington Park nears the midway point of its 103-day meet this week with emphasis on some of racing's younger performers as it presents the $20,000 added Primer Stakes Wednesday, and the $50,000 added Governor's Cup Handicap Saturday.

The Primer Stakes is a five and one-half furlong affair for two-year-olds. Mrs. and T. B. Healy's Old Jacinto is among the nominees. The roan colt has won two in a row, and his last victory was a front-running effort in which he covered five and one-half panels in 1:03-4, the fastest time of the current Arlington meet at that distance.

Other Primer Stakes' nominees include N. L. Cohen's His Bid, Jer-Ed Farms' His Bid, William R. Kelly's King of Miracles, R. N. Lehman's five Star General and J. Morrissey and J. Burst's Raise A Jet. The last two named are winners at the current meet.

TWENTY-THREE sophomore runners, including Golden Chance Farm's well-known Run Dusty Run, have been nominated to the Governor's Cup, a mile and one-eighth fixture on the main course. Run Dusty Run's conditioner, "Smiley" Adams, also named Smiley's Dream to the Governor's Cup.

Run Dusty Run's last appearance saw him engage in an exciting stretch duel with Silver Series in the American Derby here July 2. Silver Series emerged narrowly the best, but it was a classic horse race.

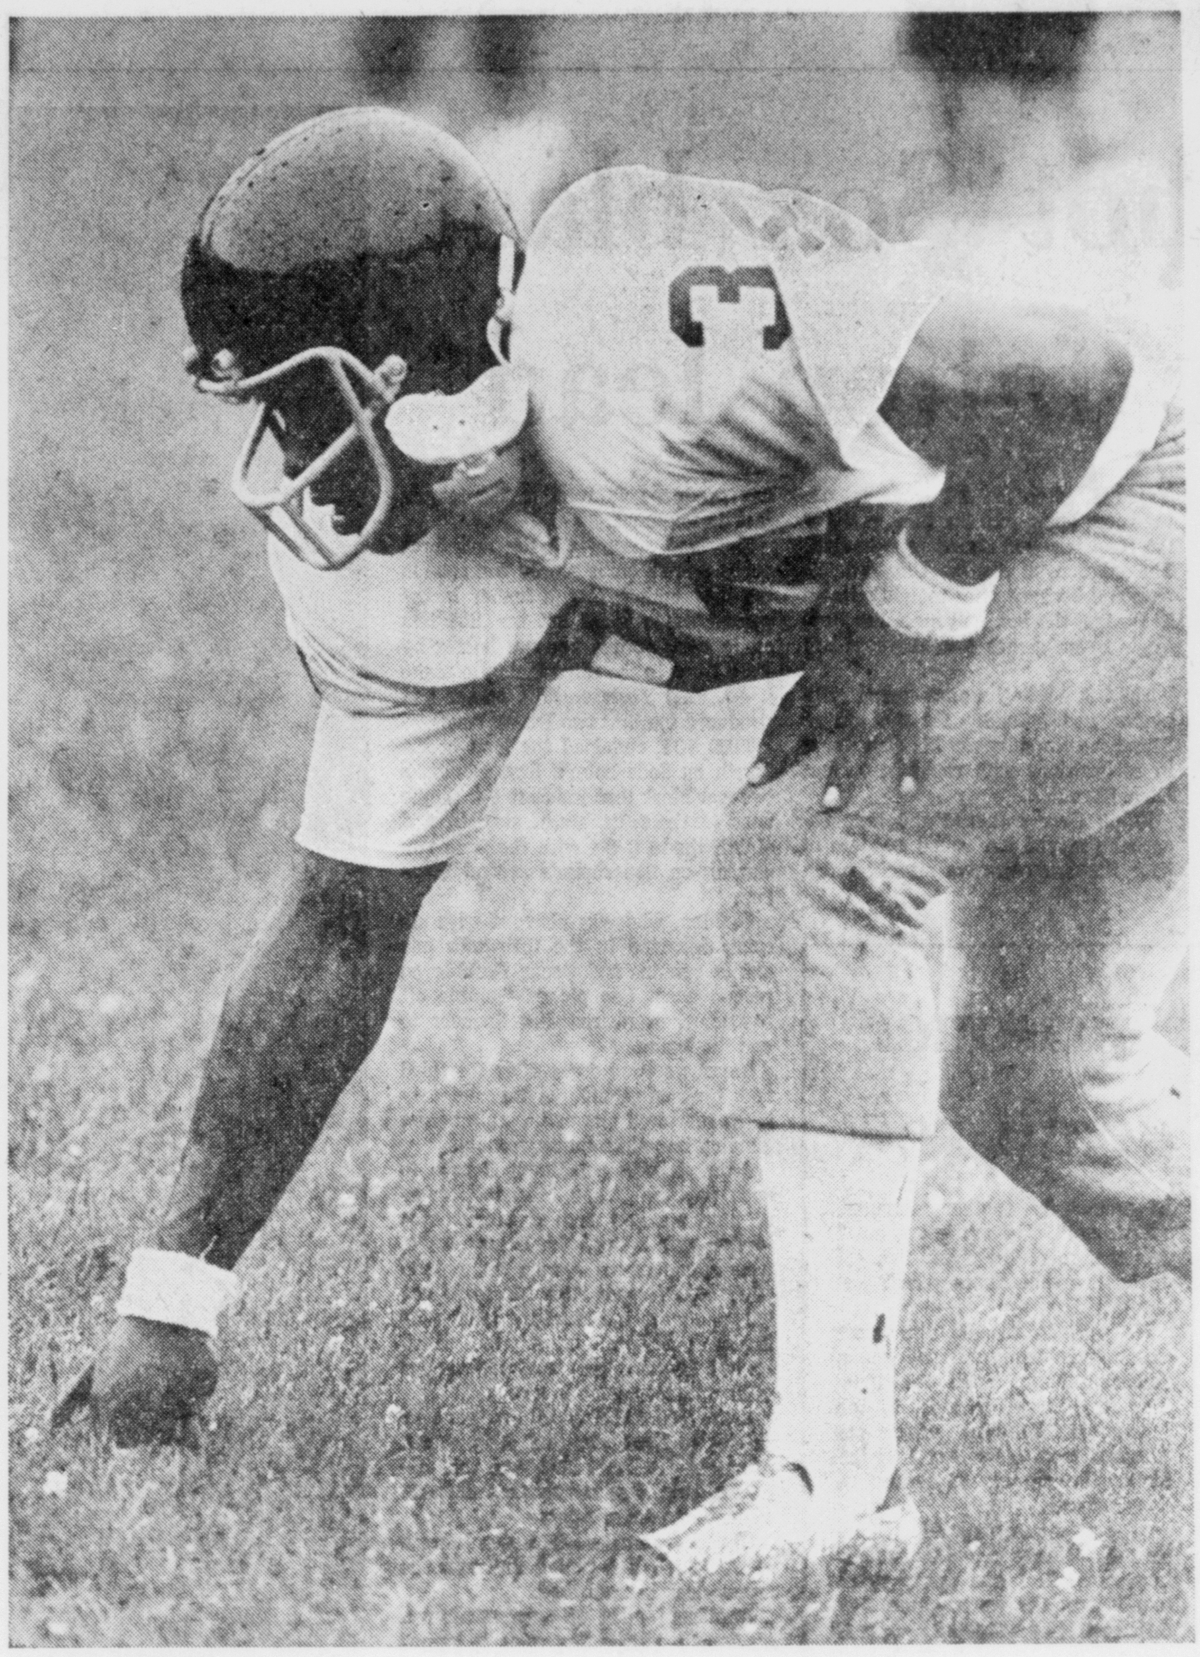
There were two other stable couplings presented to Racing Secretary Tinker Lane. Trainer Joe Bollero submitted the names of Cornucopian and Gallant Gold for E. A. Cox, Jr., and from the east may come John L. Greer's dueo of Mr. Red Wing and Rare Pleasure.

FROM THE RANKS of local talent come these possible Governor's Cup participants: Helen Brach's Brach's Hilarious (a recent winner here on the turf), G. S. Bromagen's Man's Man, E. C. Cashman's Brigadore, Mary Lou Cashman's O'Gorman, Hawksworth Farm's Tiger Castle (second in the Olympia Stakes), R. N. Lehman's Bob's Dusty, Robert Mitchell's Loco's Reward, Mrs. J. Schwartz' Really Wworthy and J. P. Warren's stakes' winning Dragon Along.

From other racing points may come William H. Murray's Jatski, F. Acevedo's Gift of Kings, Harbor View Farm's Affiliate, Mrs. Moody Jolley's Nearly On Time, N. A. Martini's Solly, Gerald Robins' Forward Charger, Leopoldo Villareal's A Gypsy Says, and J. Van Berg and L. Vernon Cagle's Haystack Jack.

July 30 is a special day at Arlington in another way as it is also photo day. Racing fans are invited to bring their cameras. Besides regular race track features, there will be a whole gallery of celebrities on hand and available for picture taking.

Monday through Friday, Arlington presents, as part of its Golden Anniversary celebration, its "Lucky Losers" giveaway program in which all patrons are eligible to win free trips, free dinners and tickets to the Pheasant Run Playhouse.



WALTER PAYTON will be back in his familiar slot in the backfield tonight when the Bears hold an intrasquad scrimmage at Soldier Field for the benefit of the Public League.

Yankees stop Royals, 3-1

Lou Piniella singled in two unearned runs in the first inning and Don Gullett and Dick Tidrow limited Kansas City to eight singles Sunday to guide the New York Yankees to a 3-1 victory over the Royals.

In other American League action Sunday, Detroit defeated Toronto 6-2, Texas stopped Cleveland 4-1, Baltimore swept two games from Milwaukee 4-3 and 3-2, California downed Seattle in the first game of a doubleheader 3-1, and Minnesota won the first game of a twin bill with Oakland 5-3.

Piniella's single capped a two-out rally for New York in the first. Thurman Munson's ground ball slipped between the legs of shortstop Fred Patek and Chris Chambliss lined a double before Piniella's hit.

DETROIT TIGERS rookie left-hander Bob Sykes retired the first 17 batters and was working on a one-hit shutout before giving up a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth inning as he setled for a 6-2 two-hit victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Milt May doubled home two runs in the second inning and Detroit coasted to victory from there. Jesse Jefferson suffered his 10th loss.

Claudell Washington raced home with the winning run on a fielder's choice in a two-run sixth inning and Doyle Alexander scattered seven hits to pace the Texas Rangers to a 4-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

The Rangers, who have now won 12 of their last 15 games, put the lead runner on in five of the first six innings before scoring against starter and loser Wayne Garland.

AL baseball

ELLIOTT MADDOX drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning of the nightcap in a 4-3 victory after Eddie Murray's game-winning double won the opener 3-2 when the Baltimore Orioles swept a doubleheader from the Milwaukee Brewers.

Mike Flanagan, 8-8, four-hit the Brewers to win his sixth straight complete game victory in the opener as Murray doubled home Pat Kelly in the eighth inning after Kelly had singled and stolen second.

BOBBY BONDS drove in three runs with a sacrifice fly and his 21st home run to give the California Angels a 3-1 triumph over the Seattle Mariners in the first game of a doubleheader.

Paul Hartzell, with eighth-inning relief help from Dyar Miller, won his fourth game in 10 decisions. Miller finished the game to earn his third save but gave up a run in the ninth on a triple by Ruppert Jones and a sacrifice fly by Bill Stein.

Dan Ford's two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning sparked the Minnesota Twins to a 5-3 victory over the Oakland A's in the first game of a doubleheader.

Ford smashed reliever Bob Lacey's first pitch 410 feet into the left field stands with Lyman Bostock aboard on a single to put Minnesota into a 4-3 lead. Ford's eighth homer was his seventh straight extra base hit.

Luzinski hit leads Phils past Padres

Greg Luzinski singled with the bases filled to drive in two runs and highlight a four-run seventh inning as the Philadelphia Phillies overtook the San Diego Padres 7-4 Sunday.

In other National League play Sunday, Pittsburgh beat Atlanta 7-6, St. Louis downed Cincinnati 3-0, Los Angeles defeated New York 5-3 and San Francisco blanked Montreal 3-0 in the first game of a doubleheader on the West Coast.

Luzinski, who also drove in a run in the first and has 73 for the season, broke a 4-4 tie with his hit that drove in Tim McCarver and Bake McBride. Earlier in the inning, Larry Bowa tied the game with a sacrifice fly that scored Ted Sizemore, who had walked and moved to third when McCarver also walked and McBride beat out an infield single.

RELIEVER STEVE KLINE walked pinch-hitter Jim Fregosi with two out and the bases filled in the 13th inning forcing in the winning run and giving the Pittsburgh Pirates a 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Pirates were trailing 6-5 with two out when Rennie Stennett singled and Ed Ott singled moving pinch-runner Mario Mendoza to third. Omar Moreno then singled home Mendoza with the tying run and pinch-hitter Jerry Hairston walked filling the bases and setting the stage for Fregosi's walk.

Eric Rasmussen shut out Cincinnati on four hits and Keith Hernandez singled home Heity Cruz with two out in the sixth inning to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-0 victory over the Reds.

Rasmussen, now 7-10 with all his victories coming in complete games, struck out five and walked two.

DAVEY LOPES, given a second life when Bruce Boisclair dropped his foul pop to right, crashed a three-run homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets.

Jim Barr hurled a four-hitter and Derrel Thomas hit a two-run inside the park homer when the San Francisco Giants blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0 in the opener of a doubleheader.

Barr, 9-7, pitched his first shutout of the season aided by three double plays. Loser Wayne Twitchell gave up the Expos' first run in the seventh inning when Bill Madlock doubled and went to third on an infield out. Willie McCovey was walked intentionally and Foli laid a squeeze bunt down the first base line as Madlock charged home.

Rain interferes with softball tournament

Local teams were shutout in the 12th annual Illinois Park and Recreation Men's 16-inch Softball State Tournament in Des Plaines Saturday and Sunday.

Bank of Elk Grove and Mount Prospect were the most successful teams. One more win for each squad would have advanced them into Sunday's quarterfinals of the single-elimination tourney.

In Saturday's action, Bank of Elk Grove defeated Hoffman Estates 13-8 and Cary 9-3, but lost to Maywood Villa Maria West 16-3. Maywood was a pre-tournament favorite.

Mount Prospect beat Wilmette 14-0 and Oak Park, 11-4, before falling to the Kelly Park (Chicago) Amalga Monsters 12-5. Like Maywood, Kelly Park was a pre-tourney choice.

All other area entrants dropped their opening round games. Park Forest slaughtered Schaumburg's Hardin-Paving Hornets 16-3, Deerfield dumped Prospect Heights, 11-1, Golf-Maine ripped Rolling Meadows, 13-1, Hanover Park axed Therma-Flow of Arlington Heights 9-7, Hickory Hills edged Des Plaines 15-14, Dunham Park (Chicago) stopped the Waycinden Taggers 12-5, and Memorial Park whipped the Wheeling Mudsharks 13-5.

Sunday's rain permitted quarterfinal play only. The Barodview Nocturnes edged Maywood, 3-2, the Bensenville Freeloaders pounded the Pasteur Park (Chicago) Dukes, 19-6, Kelly Park upended the Wheaton Pirates 6-4, and the Veterans-Josefs beat the Evanston Stones, 10-5.

Semifinals are slated for 9 a.m. Saturday at Rand Park, Des Plaines. It will be Broadview vs. Bensenville on diamond No. 1 and Kelly Park vs. Veterans on diamond No. 2.

The two winners will play for the championship at 10:30 that morning on diamond No. 1. All games can be seen for free.

Of the original nine top-seeded teams, only Broadview and Kelly Park advanced to the semifinals.

Veterans were considered the 10th best team before the tournament began while Bensenville is a darkhorse that has surprised the field.

IRS threatens welfare of NCAA members

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Greetings! This is to inform you that your 1976 tax returns are scheduled for audit.

Gives you that empty feeling in the pit of your stomach, huh?

Sure.

None of us, and particularly businessmen with complicated forms, is anxious to undergo scrutiny. There are many, I'm sure, who would prefer a midnight rousting by the Gestapo to a visit by Internal Revenue Service agents.

THE CONCERN is built-in. After all, these are the same guys who "did in" gangster Al Capone when Chicago's lawmen failed. Innumerable grafters, including one of the nation's recent vice-presidents, beat prosecuting attorneys but not the IRS.

Thus the National Collegiate Athletic Assn., an organization of colleges and universities operating sports on a non profit basis, isn't taking lightly an unexpected IRS threat to the collective income.

Suddenly, after all these years, an IRS regional office in Texas has raised the question whether heavy corporate taxes (48 per cent) should be imposed on all revenues received by colleges and universities from the radio and television broadcasting of athletic contests.

We're talking about a giant hunk of money. Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, who edged out Illinois vs. Michigan for the opening night game on ABC-TV, will receive $250,000 apiece for that appearance.

AT THIS POINT, the tax status of that money is anybody's guess.

Contrary to what you might have read, no formal ruling has been issued by the IRS since the Dallas office brought it to the attention of the hierarchy. And NCAA members remain hopeful as they tell themselves that (1) sanity will prevail in an area where dollars are so desperately needed to meet the challenge of inflation and Title IX and (2) precedent was established in 1974 with a ruling that income received from the granting of rights to TV football games of the member institutions does not constitute taxable unrelated businss income.

IRS staff members are pondering the latter point, and a theory is emerging that sale of radio and TV broadcast rights is a trade or business, the conduct of which is not substantially related to the exempt functions of colleges and universities.

IRS staffers are evaluating Southern Methodist, Texas Christian and Kansas, plus the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association. Obviously, the ultimate ruling will affect every school in the NCAA.

FOR THE UNIVERSITY of Illinois, already heavily in debt in the athletic sector and amidst massive stadium repairs, the decision is critical.

The UI has football TV income topping $100,000 and radio income of more than $25,000. Add basketball, where TV and radio income is essential in putting that sport over the top financially, and you can see the enormity of the problem.

A 48 per cent cut would begin to approach the $100,000 figure and, if the anticipated three-year retroactive factor is correct, the Illini could owe more than a quarter of a million dollars overnight.

More than that, the IRS could also decide that athletic program advertising should be included, and who knows what else. The potential amount of tax money is mind boggling.

"This is ridiculous," states UI athletic director Cecil Coleman. "Somebody has to be smart enough to realize what this would do to collegiate athletics. Our TV and radio income is as related to our operation as parking, concessions and program income.

"IF THIS THING went through, there would be so many law suits that we'd all be gray and walking with canes by the time it is settled. It would certainly be challenged all the way to the Supreme Court."

For the time being, budget makers are going forward in something of a quandary. The three involved universities have requested a hearing with the IRS and are hopeful it will be forthcoming. Everyone else, including the University of Illinois, is waiting with bated breath.

Martin back in firing line

I thought the same thing. Then in Texas. It isn't something you really get used to.

"When I heard all the rumors yesterday I started feeling like the guys do on death row."

Martin said he had not seen or spoken with Yankee principle owner George Steinbrenner, who was out of town. Paul refused to discuss his meeting with Martin.

"THEY'RE JUST rumors," Paul said."Time proves everything. Is Billy Martin the manager today? So that tells the story."

Howser denied being offered Martin's job.

"I didn't talk to anyone about it," he said. "The first I heard about it was in the parking lot yesterday."

Martin said he would continue to manage the way he has and not worry about the constant turmoil surrounding the Yankees.

"I can win 150 games on the field," he said. "Managing on the field is easy. It's the clubhouse that's killing me. I don't think I'd like to be a man stepping into this job.

"I've never run scared in my life and I won't run scared now. I've got an obligation to the Yankees to go out and do my job like I did it yesterday. My personal feelings are second. Whatever happens, happens."

FLEAS REJOICE! "Lee's Fleas" had plenty to smile about Sunday as Lee Trevino easily won the Canadian Open title for his first tour victory in over a year. The popular golfer has been battling back trouble.

Trevino victorious at Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ont.—Lee Trevino made it back to the winner's circle after more than a year's absence Sunday when he fired a final round 74 to capture his second Canadian Open championship.

The leader after each of the first three rounds, the 37-year-old Trevino began the day with a six-stroke lead and lost only two strokes of his lead on the final round to finish with a 72-hole total of 280.

Trevino had two birdies and four bogeys on the 7,291-yard layout to pick up his 20th PGA victory and first since May, 1976. The triumph was worth $45,000 and pushed Trevino's career earnings to $1,606,851.

"Sometimes people who think they're tough need to get knocked down. Then they remember what got them there was hard work," said Trevino, who underwent back surgery last year. "When you get hurt you want to prove something — that you're not washed up. That's the road I'm on now. It was a pretty easy day for me. I actually didn't play the back very well, especially the last four or five holes. I kept looking at the board and nobody was doing anything, so I started hitting it to the center of the greens."

Stacy captures Women's Open title

CHASKA, Minn. — Hollis Stacy fought off challenges for four days and won the U.S. Women's Open golf championship Sunday by two strokes at Hazeltine National Golf Course. Stacy, playing in her eighth Open, fired a final round 74 for a 72-hole total of four-over par 292 for the 6,313 yard course and won first prize money of $11,000.

Nancy Marie Lopez, 20, of Roswell, N.M., making her debut as a pro, charged from two strokes behind to tie Stacy at three-over par midway through the final round. But she hit a tree and took a double bogey on the 12th hole and finished with six-over par 294, for second place money of $7,000. Defending champion Jo Anne Carner of Lake Worth, Fla., trying for her third U.S. Open title, was three strokes back at 295.

Gottfried nets triumph over Solomon

WASHINGTON — Second-seeded Brian Gottfried found his aggressive game early in the second set Sunday and went on to beat local favorite Harold Solomon, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, and advance to the singles final in the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

Gottfried, from Bonaventure, Fla., will play either No. 1 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina or fifth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami in Monday night's final for the $20,000 first prize. Vilas and Dibbs played Sunday evening in the other semifinal. Gottfried, who has won four tournaments and more than $160,000 this year, started sluggishly, losing the first set to Solomon. But, with the games 1-1 in the second set, he won 12 straight points for a 4-1 lead.

Lips in high gear; Ali plugs fight

NEW YORK — "I ain't no ducker, sucker, nobody can accuse me of duckin' nobody. I fought 'em all, the big, bad Sonny Liston, beat him twice, Joe Frazier, beat him two outa three and shoulda won the first time, George Foreman, knocked him out, beat Ken Norton twice, Jimmy Young. I gave everybody a shot."

Ah! Muhammad Ali is back for another round in the life of the Greatest. He's 35-years old but his voice and lungs are still 25 and today he's coming back to New York to kick off the promotion of his next, and perhaps most daring, title defense Sept. 29 against Earnie Shavers in Madison Square Garden.

Shavers, unlike Ali's last opponent, Alfredo Evangelista of Spain, is a known quantity. He's got fists of lead and has knocked out 52 of his 54 victims, including Jimmy Young and Jimmy Ellis each in one round in 1973.

Sting suffers seventh shutout, 1-0

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Ilya Mitic booted his first goal of the NASL season Sunday to lead the San Jose Earthquakes to a 1-0 win over the Chicago Sting. Quakes goalie Mike Hewitt made five saves in recording his seventh shutout of the season.

It's not whether you win or lose, but whether you beat the spread

Jim Murray

Worried about President Carter? Don't be. He's going to be a one-term President. Kennedy will be President in 1981.

Afraid for the Rams? Put away the prayer beads. They'll be in the Super Bowl on Jan. 15. Against the Oakland Raiders.

The Dodgers will be in the World Series. Against Kansas City. The Dodgers will win.

THE STOCK MARKET? Get off it. Never mind what E. F. Hutton says. The Dow-Jones is going down to 800 in a year or so.

Notre Dame is going to beat USC by 40 points this fall. The Celtics will win the NBA.

Astrology? Mars conjuncted with Venus? Jupiter caught in its 12th house? Scorpio rising? A new computer plugged into 1980? Talking fortune cookies?

Nope. The future comes to us courtesy of Daniel Joseph Sheridan, 28, of the Mobile, Ala., Sheridans, not to be confused with the damnyankee general of the same name.

DANNY SHERIDAN is what your sainted maiden aunt might call a "t-o-u-t" — except Danny shudders at the word. A tout, by his definition, is a guy who gives eight different horses in an eight-horse race to eight different people, then seeks out the one he gave the right one to after the race.

The only computer Danny consults is the one between his ears. So far as astrology is concerned, he doesn't even know what his zodiac sign is. He knows he's going to win football games the same way old people know when it's going to rain. He recognizes all signs.

For instance, two years ago, Oklahoma had the greatest college football team in the nation. The Sooners were so good, they were on probation, and they were playing a Kansas team which had had a 3-11 record the year before. Oklahoma was a 25-point favorite. Sheridan advised his clients Kansas would not only beat the spread, they would beat Oklahoma. They did, 23-3.

That kind of clairvoyance has made Danny Sheridan the Henry Ford of one of America's newest industries — football touting. It is estimated that 30 million Americans bet regularly on pro football, that ONE BILLION dollars is bet on the Super Bowl annually, counting the one-on-one lunch-counter bets, the office pools, as well as the commission wagering.

ALL SPORTS wagering a year has been estimated by Sheridan at over $373 billion. Sheridan considers this estimate conservative. "There are 300,000 bookies. And they all drive Cadillacs. They all employ four to five workers, and even more runners. So you're talking of a work force of one million. I'm surprised the Teamsters don't organize them."

You can't pick up a football magazine on the news stands that isn't full of "football prognostication" service ads. Street and Smith's Football Annual, the bible of college football which used to be full of truss ads and body-building come-ons in our youth, is now a cover-to-cover hard-sell for the gamblers. "Our Ninth Great Winning Year! Last Year Our Bowl Report Hit 10 Winners And Only One Loser versus The Spread!" "Telephone Weekly Specials! $50 Guaranteed Or Your Money Back!" "Super-pick Free Trial Offer!" "Call Spreadbeaters! Trial Offer Available! Pay Only When You Win!" Major credit cards accepted.

Interspersed among these quasi invitations to break the law are paragraphs devoted to the myth that all the pictured athletes and coaches therein really only want to beat Rutgers, or win the Old Oaken Bucket, or build character, or win one for the Gipper or beat Army! Instead it's Beat The Points!

THE INFIGHTING among rival services is worse than Ohio State-Michigan in a goal-line stand. They snipe at each other. "Did the Gold Sheet's Late Telephone Service really go 0-15-1 on its NFL predictions during five consecutive Sundays?" or "Was Danny Sheridan's Bowl Record really 2-9?" they ask innocently, and then move in with their clincher, "Was SCORE's Bowl Record really 7-1 last year?"

Compulsive gamblers looking for an "edge" are like annuities to a Danny Sheridan, who charges his 2,500 regular customers $175 a season for college picks, $175 for pro picks, $150 for college bowls, $150 for pro play-offs, and $75 for the Super Bowl. Danny moved into his income bracket by appearing on the Tom Snyder Tomorrow show on TV two years ago and picking 17 winners, one tie and one loss.

The afternoon I interviewed Danny Sheridan was the day of the All-Star baseball game in New York. "All right, wise guy, who's going to win?" I asked him. "The National League, 7-2," he said.

Before you go out and hock the wife's mink coat on this good thing, you should know Danny picked Gerald Ford to win the Presidential election last year. Of course, at the time he did, Jimmy Carter was a 32-point fa the Gallup and Harris polls. So, Dan vorite and had a 32-point edge on all ny takes the position he beat the spread.

FLEAS REJOICE! "Lee's Fleas" had plenty to smile about Sunday as Lee Trevino easily won the Canadian Open title for his first tour victory in over a year. The popular golfer has been battling back trouble.

Trevino victorious at Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ont.—Lee Trevino made it back to the winner's circle after more than a year's absence Sunday when he fired a final round 74 to capture his second Canadian Open championship.

The leader after each of the first three rounds, the 37-year-old Trevino began the day with a six-stroke lead and lost only two strokes of his lead on the final round to finish with a 72-hole total of 280.

Trevino had two birdies and four bogeys on the 7,291-yard layout to pick up his 20th PGA victory and first since May, 1976. The triumph was worth $45,000 and pushed Trevino's career earnings to $1,606,851.

"Sometimes people who think they're tough need to get knocked down. Then they remember what got them there was hard work," said Trevino, who underwent back surgery last year. "When you get hurt you want to prove something — that you're not washed up. That's the road I'm on now. It was a pretty easy day for me. I actually didn't play the back very well, especially the last four or five holes. I kept looking at the board and nobody was doing anything, so I started hitting it to the center of the greens."

Stacy captures Women's Open title

CHASKA, Minn. — Hollis Stacy fought off challenges for four days and won the U.S. Women's Open golf championship Sunday by two strokes at Hazeltine National Golf Course. Stacy, playing in her eighth Open, fired a final round 74 for a 72-hole total of four-over par 292 for the 6,313 yard course and won first prize money of $11,000.

Nancy Marie Lopez, 20, of Roswell, N.M., making her debut as a pro, charged from two strokes behind to tie Stacy at three-over par midway through the final round. But she hit a tree and took a double bogey on the 12th hole and finished with six-over par 294, for second place money of $7,000. Defending champion Jo Anne Carner of Lake Worth, Fla., trying for her third U.S. Open title, was three strokes back at 295.

Gottfried nets triumph over Solomon

WASHINGTON — Second-seeded Brian Gottfried found his aggressive game early in the second set Sunday and went on to beat local favorite Harold Solomon, 4-6, 6-3, 6-1, and advance to the singles final in the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championships.

Gottfried, from Bonaventure, Fla., will play either No. 1 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina or fifth-seeded Eddie Dibbs of Miami in Monday night's final for the $20,000 first prize. Vilas and Dibbs played Sunday evening in the other semifinal. Gottfried, who has won four tournaments and more than $160,000 this year, started sluggishly, losing the first set to Solomon. But, with the games 1-1 in the second set, he won 12 straight points for a 4-1 lead.

Lips in high gear; Ali plugs fight

NEW YORK — "I ain't no ducker, sucker, nobody can accuse me of duckin' nobody. I fought 'em all, the big, bad Sonny Liston, beat him twice, Joe Frazier, beat him two outa three and shoulda won the first time, George Foreman, knocked him out, beat Ken Norton twice, Jimmy Young. I gave everybody a shot."

Ah! Muhammad Ali is back for another round in the life of the Greatest. He's 35-years old but his voice and lungs are still 25 and today he's coming back to New York to kick off the promotion of his next, and perhaps most daring, title defense Sept. 29 against Earnie Shavers in Madison Square Garden.

Shavers, unlike Ali's last opponent, Alfredo Evangelista of Spain, is a known quantity. He's got fists of lead and has knocked out 52 of his 54 victims, including Jimmy Young and Jimmy Ellis each in one round in 1973.

Sting suffers seventh shutout, 1-0

SAN JOSE, Calif. — Ilya Mitic booted his first goal of the NASL season Sunday to lead the San Jose Earthquakes to a 1-0 win over the Chicago Sting. Quakes goalie Mike Hewitt made five saves in recording his seventh shutout of the season.

It's not whether you win or lose, but whether you beat the spread

Jim Murray

Worried about President Carter? Don't be. He's going to be a one-term President. Kennedy will be President in 1981.

Afraid for the Rams? Put away the prayer beads. They'll be in the Super Bowl on Jan. 15. Against the Oakland Raiders.

The Dodgers will be in the World Series. Against Kansas City. The Dodgers will win.

THE STOCK MARKET? Get off it. Never mind what E. F. Hutton says. The Dow-Jones is going down to 800 in a year or so.

Notre Dame is going to beat USC by 40 points this fall. The Celtics will win the NBA.

Astrology? Mars conjuncted with Venus? Jupiter caught in its 12th house? Scorpio rising? A new computer plugged into 1980? Talking fortune cookies?

Nope. The future comes to us courtesy of Daniel Joseph Sheridan, 28, of the Mobile, Ala., Sheridans, not to be confused with the damnyankee general of the same name.

DANNY SHERIDAN is what your sainted maiden aunt might call a "t-o-u-t" — except Danny shudders at the word. A tout, by his definition, is a guy who gives eight different horses in an eight-horse race to eight different people, then seeks out the one he gave the right one to after the race.

The only computer Danny consults is the one between his ears. So far as astrology is concerned, he doesn't even know what his zodiac sign is. He knows he's going to win football games the same way old people know when it's going to rain. He recognizes all signs.

For instance, two years ago, Oklahoma had the greatest college football team in the nation. The Sooners were so good, they were on probation, and they were playing a Kansas team which had had a 3-11 record the year before. Oklahoma was a 25-point favorite. Sheridan advised his clients Kansas would not only beat the spread, they would beat Oklahoma. They did, 23-3.

That kind of clairvoyance has made Danny Sheridan the Henry Ford of one of America's newest industries — football touting. It is estimated that 30 million Americans bet regularly on pro football, that ONE BILLION dollars is bet on the Super Bowl annually, counting the one-on-one lunch-counter bets, the office pools, as well as the commission wagering.

ALL SPORTS wagering a year has been estimated by Sheridan at over $373 billion. Sheridan considers this estimate conservative. "There are 300,000 bookies. And they all drive Cadillacs. They all employ four to five workers, and even more runners. So you're talking of a work force of one million. I'm surprised the Teamsters don't organize them."

You can't pick up a football magazine on the news stands that isn't full of "football prognostication" service ads. Street and Smith's Football Annual, the bible of college football which used to be full of truss ads and body-building come-ons in our youth, is now a cover-to-cover hard-sell for the gamblers. "Our Ninth Great Winning Year! Last Year Our Bowl Report Hit 10 Winners And Only One Loser versus The Spread!" "Telephone Weekly Specials! $50 Guaranteed Or Your Money Back!" "Superpick Free Trial Offer!" "Call Spreadbeaters! Trial Offer Available! Pay Only When You Win!" Major credit cards accepted.

Interspersed among these quasi invitations to break the law are paragraphs devoted to the myth that all the pictured athletes and coaches therein really only want to beat Rutgers, or win the Old Oaken Bucket, or build character, or win one for the Gipper or beat Army! Instead it's Beat The Points!

THE INFIGHTING among rival services is worse than Ohio State-Michigan in a goal-line stand. They snipe at each other. "Did the Gold Sheet's Late Telephone Service really go 0-15-1 on its NFL predictions during five consecutive Sundays?" or "Was Danny Sheridan's Bowl Record really 2-9?" they ask innocently, and then move in with their clincher, "Was SCORE's Bowl Record really 7-1 last year?"

Compulsive gamblers looking for an "edge" are like annuities to a Danny Sheridan, who charges his 2,500 regular customers $175 a season for college picks, $175 for pro picks, $150 for college bowls, $150 for pro play-offs, and $75 for the Super Bowl. Danny moved into his income bracket by appearing on the Tom Snyder Tomorrow show on TV two years ago and picking 17 winners, one tie and one loss.

The afternoon I interviewed Danny Sheridan was the day of the All-Star baseball game in New York. "All right, wise guy, who's going to win?" I asked him. "The National League, 7-2," he said.

Before you go out and hock the wife's mink coat on this good thing, you should know Danny picked Gerald Ford to win the Presidential election last year. Of course, at the time he did, Jimmy Carter was a 32-point fa the Gallup and Harris polls. So, Danvorite and had a 32-point edge on all ny takes the position he beat the spread.

"I think this is called a 'corporate takeover'!"

'Salary gap between boss and worker closes a bit'

by DAVID R. FRANCIS

The corporation is becoming somewhat more egalitarian in wages.

Despite the fact that a couple of executives last year racked up a total compensation package in excess of $1 million, the average salary of corporate brass is a smaller multiple of the average worker's wage than it was a dozen years ago.

A study by McKinsey & Co., management consultants, finds that a typical chief executive officer's gross pay in 1976 was about 13.4 times larger than the average factory worker's pay. That multiple was 18.5 in 1964.

Gross pay of the middle-level executive, as a multiple of the factory worker's wages, fell from 5.7 to 4.1 in those same 12 years.

THE STATISTICS TELL a similar tale for disposable income — money left over after federal income and social security taxes. Middle-level executives have been particularly hard hit by the tendency of rapid inflation to push them into higher tax brackets. Last year their after-tax pay was 3.6 times the average worker's wages, compared with a multiple of 5.1 in 1964.

What has happened in those 12 years is that workers' wages went up faster than those of executives.

David Kraus, a McKinsey partner, reckons that to hold their own against inflation, individual executives have had to depend on "merit" salary increases; and to make any real headway in compensation, they needed to receive promotions.

The McKinsey study is based on information gathered by the American Management Assn.'s compensation survey. It uses data on a typical manufacturing company doing $228 million in annual sales. It finds that the cash compensation — salary plus bonus — of highly paid executives increased 45 per cent, or 3.1 per cent per year on average, during those 12 years.

The equivalent statistics for middle-level executives were 42 per cent and 3 per cent a year.

SUCH PERCENTAGE pay raises would have made factory workers most unhappy in those inflationary years. They got a 100 per cent wage increase, or 6 per cent per year during the 1964-76 period.

The McKinsey study does not take account of executive stock options or non-cash perquisites. But 1964 and 1976 probably do not differ much proportionately in this regard as both were economic recovery years.

To sum up, executives' gross and after-tax cash compensation fell 25 per cent between 1964 and 1976 as a multiple of hourly workers' income. At the same time, the relative purchasing power of executives' income also declined 25 per cent.

Even with this change, the question remains: Are executives paid too much? Do they need such high compensation to provide the incentive for bright individuals to strive to reach the top?

A BUSINESS WEEK survey, coupled with the help of Booz, Allen & Hamilton, Inc., management consultants, found that the 15 highest-paid U.S. executives in 1976 received total compensation (salary, bonus, plus gains from stock options exercised) ranging from $869,000 to $1,662,000.

The basic reason for high executive salaries is the number of job levels in a corporate bureaucracy. Each time an employe gets promoted, he or she expects a boost in pay. Every boss should be paid more than those he supervises. One rule of thumb is that the subordinate should get about two-thirds of the pay of his superior.

Kraus maintains that such a gap between job strata encourages executives to work hard for promotions. The system has produced well for the United States, he adds.

Management guru Peter Drucker, however, argues that very large executive salaries, though unimportant economically from a national or even usually a corporate standpoint, do enormous damage socially because of their high visibility. They are taken as typical rather than the extreme exceptions they are.

Drucker advocates a published corporate policy that fixes the maximum compensation of all corporate executives, after all taxes but including all fringes, to a specific multiple of the after-tax and pre-fringe income of the lowest paid regular full-time employe.

Such a technique may be overly rigid. But there should be some attempt by corporate boards to continue the restraint on executive compensation. Excessive pay and perquisites or overly generous stock options are unfair and give the free-enterprise system a bad image.

U.S. group backs employe rights law

The Chamber of Commerce of the U.S. has given its support to legislation introduced by Congressman John Erlenborn, R-Ill., that will "protect the rights of individual employes" under the 40-year-old National Labor Relations Act. Titled the "Employe Bill of Rights," the bill would guarantee such fundamental employe rights as free secret ballot elections of union representatives and secret ballot votes on whether or not to strike. The bill would also prohibit unions from fining members who may disagree with union policy, and would permit employes with religious convictions from having to contribute dues to a union.

Super stores gross $4 million

Almost one-quarter of the total supermarket population in the United States are stores grossing over $4 million a year, according to Progressive Grocer's Data Center. These so-called super stores totaled 7,620 out of 32,700 grocery outlets. They accounted for almost one-third of all grocery store sales and average 11,225 transactions weekly at $10.69 per transaction, the center said.

8% of resumes inaccurate: expert

Peter H. Lauer, president of the Chicago-based executive search firm of Lauer & Holbrook, Inc., recently surveyed the resumes his firm processed during the past year and found that eight per cent contained inaccurate statements.

Lauer noted that most of the "red-flagged" resumes contained mis-statements regarding educational background.

"Some people claimed to have graduated when they had only completed several years of college, while other claimed non-existent graduate degrees. They probably assume," Lauer notes, "that these claims are not checked. However, a reputable executive search firm does check out this sort of information on a regular basis."

Other areas in which mis-statements were found om resumes included job titles, responsibilities, and having worked for more companies than indicated.

Aluminum recycling a record

Chicago area residents have broken all monthly records in the collection and redemption of aluminum cans and other clean household aluminum, R. J. Woosley, Reynolds Metals Co. district manager, reports. Woosley says collections in the Chicago area and in Kewanee and Peoria in June totaled a record 158,500 pounds, beating the old record, set in July 1976, of 146,000 pounds. He noted the poundage is equivalent to 3,645,000 aluminum beverage cans that otherwise might have ended up as litter. For their efforts, Chicago area residents received nearly $27,000 during June.

Palatine firm gets new duties

Thomas E. C. R., Inc., a Palatine dealer and distributor of cash registers, has been appointed as sales and service agent for Data Terminal Systems, manufacturer of electronic cash control terminals. DTS, which markets a line of stand-alone electronic registers, is based in Maynard, Mass.

JA award for Kemper

The Kemper Insurance Companies, headquartered in Long Grove, recently received the "Recognition Award" from the Junior Achievement of Chicago organization for the third consecutive year. The award was presented at Kemper's annual youth program adivsor awards reception, by Chris Kuehn, manager of the northern Junior Achievement division.

Real estate sought after investment

American real estate now is probably the most sought-after investment in the industrial world, Business Week magazine said Friday. Foreign and American investors are competing vigorously to buy good developed and undeveloped sites. Shopping center locations are the biggest attraction, it said. Curiously, the demand has developed only in the past 18 months, the magazine noted. Before that, U.S. real estate specialists were singing the blues because the recession, which brought on the worst real estate crunch in 40 years, had resulted in many foreclosures and distress sales.

Honda to build U.S. cycle plants

Honda Motor Co., the leading motorcycle maker, has decided to set up motorcycle manufacturing plants in the United States, the Asahi Shimbun newspaper said Friday. The nationally circulated newspaper said Honda will start purchasing land in the Great Lakes area this autumn and will begin operation in the autumn of next year.

Ads will help keep lawyers honest

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK—Many people don't consult a lawyer when they should because they think it will cost them an arm and a leg just to walk in the door. But on simple problems, like what your rights are if a neighbor's tree starts bumping your living room window or what kind of note to sign when you lend someone money, you might get all the lawyering you need for $15 or $30.

Some lawyers are indeed in the business of dismembering clients. One of the stereotypical definitions of the profession comes from Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., who wrote: "Just as a good pilot should always be looking for places to land, so should a lawyer be looking for situations where large amounts of money are about to change hands."

But in fact, the vast number of lawyers will charge reasonable fees for the simple services (especially if the consumer makes it clear that he's price-shopping). Where they don't, they'll soon have to, due to an important Supreme Court decision recently handed down.

THE COURT SAID lawyers no longer may be prohibited from advertising their services, the type of lawsuits they generally handle and the prices they charge. The first lawyers to advertise are likely to be those who are younger and hungrier and therefore willing to cut prices in order to get business. This will put price pressure on the more established lawyers, at least for their routine services.

As more firms take to legal advertising, you may be surprised to learn that the market price of many services is not as high as you may have imagined. Some poeple put off making wills, for example, because they fear the cost. But in fact a simple will may cost no more than $30 to $50.

Two days after the Supreme Court handed down its decision, two law firms advertised the following prices in a New York City paper: simple wills, $30; uncontested divorces, $235 to $250 plus $80 in court costs; uncontested separation agreements, involving limited assets, $75; change of name, $95 plus $65 in court costs; adoptions, $215.

By contrast, at some of the flossier New York firms, where the price of secretaries and mahogany paneling drives fees into the statosphere, it's not unusual for uncontested divorces to cost $5,000 to $7,500.

CONSUMERS ARE OFTEN their own worst enemies in shopping for a lawyer. They're mightily impressed by mahogony paneling, which is the reason lawyers spend so much money on it.

You might choose an expensive lawyer with fancy offices over a plain-living sole practitioner on the assumption that costlier is better. That's sometimes true. But it's more likely that the two lawyers are equally competent (or incompetent, as the case may be). The high fee may simply reflect the price of mahogany. It often happens that expensive lawyers make no more profit on a case than lower-cost lawyers whose office rent isn't as high.

Many customers don't realize how vulnerable to price pressure many lawyers are. If you pay a call, say you want to hire the lawyer, and ask his fee, he'll give you what he calls his "usual rate." But if you have a simple problem that any local lawyer can handle, and you tell him that you're comparing prices, he'll probably quote you a lower fee rather than lose the business.

Now that some low-cost lawyers are starting to advertise, you'll have their prices as benchmarks in your negotiations with the lawyer of your choice.

Another thing that many consumers don't realize is that they may get all the information they need in a fairly short session at a low price. When you go to a lawyer for a divorce or lawsuit, the fee may be considerable — and you might assume that's typical of a lawyer's charge. But if you simply want to know your rights in a particular matter or have the lawyer make a phone call for you, it might be done very cheaply. Ask the lawyer what his fee is for a short consultation: It may be no more than $15 to $50, depending on the subject.

As time passes, more lawyers may start advertising low initial consultation fees. This should encourage more consumers to call a lawyer before they run the risk of trouble, and not after. That, in itself, should save you money.

Bicycle makers gear up for sales

by CHARLES E. DOLE

To 25-year-old Lynn Avery of Boston, it's a great way to meet people. And to Ed Kearney of Virginia, it's a way to get to work.

Three thousand miles away, in Davis, Calif., there are some 24,000 bikes in a community of 30,000 people. "It's the Denmark or Holland of the United States," said Phil Burke of the Bicycle Manufacturers Assn.

The West Coast college town, which includes a branch of the University of California, even requires that before a road is built or repaired the bicyclist must be taken into account.

It's all part of a smartly revived bicycle market in the United States and a shortage of new bikes may be just around the bend.

Sales are expected to hit 9 million this year and close to 10 million in 1978. The industry is starting to crank up production after the disaster that befell bikemakers when the economy did a flip-flop in 1974 and '75.

RETAILERS WERE caught with a heavy overstock of bikes and it took a long time to get rid of them. Now they are very wary and are ordering only what they know they can sell.

"We can warehouse only so many bicycles," said Ray Caparros of Schwinn, which sells about 1 in every 9 bikes marketed in the United States. "When they begin to back up, we have to cut production. If the market opens up again, we can't rev up that fast and we cannot meet the demand.

"It's very possible that our customers are going to find a shortage of some models later in the year."

Gauging demand in the next few years is tough — for two reasons:

- The life-span of the lightweight, multispeed bikes is unknown because they have not been a big sales item for more than five years.
- How many of the bike buyers of the past few years will buy another bicycle?

"The life-span of a bike, plus the reentry rates into the market, are big mysteries to us," said Burke. "We just don't know how to figure the size of the market."

Regardless, some of the domestic manufacturers are looking for a 6 to 10 per cent annual increase in sales between now and 1980.

There are about 100 million cyclists in the United States riding about 80 million bikes, according to the Bicycle Manufacturers Assn. "The 20 million who ride but don't own a bike are potential buyers," said Burke. "We also see another 75 million Americans who are potential customers in the years ahead."

It's a challenge to the bike makers to reach all those people, he said.

Meanwhile, bicycle buyers may have to line up for next Christmas if Schwinn's Caparros is right.

And he just may be. After all, he's a bike rider, too.

Cookies you can't sink teeth into

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hillary Nusinow has built a corporation from her often inedible cookies.

In 1972, Miss Nusinow was a special education teacher in a Chicago public school, making inedible gingerbread men from salt and flour in her kitchen.

During the Christmas season, she sold them as ornaments to florists and boutiques in her North Side neighborhood.

"EACH YEAR I started getting ready for Christmas earlier and earlier," she said.

As the business expanded she hired "mothers amd students" from the area and taught them to bake and paint the ornaments.

In June 1975, she quit teaching to devote all her time to the business. Last year she moved it from her apartment and opened a new line of cookie ornaments that can be eaten.

As president of "Dough-Doodles by Hillary Inc.," the 28-year-old, red-haired woman creates, designs, manufactures, markets, and distributes several kinds of ornaments. All are made out of dough. Although she now makes some that can be eaten, some are covered with shellac.

The company now deals with artists, bakers, packagers, printers, wholesalers, lawyers and accountants.

HILLARY LIKES being in control of the entire firm. She said the only way to stay in business is to keep ahead of the trends.

For example, if sensuous cookies become a fad, she says she was there first.

Her "Noodie Doodles" were sold through Civa magazine in 1975. The inedible cookie ornaments for Xmas trees were shaped like people and came in a choice of redheads, brunettes and blondes.

Miss Nusinow says the nude cookies "weren't a big money maker and didn't help business much. But I love doing crazy things."

Hate cleaning? Let pros tackle that waxy buildup

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

The situation: Your colonial split-level is filthy. Hubby refuses to clean the toilet bowl, the kids won't make their beds, and you're sick and tired of dusting the baseboards on your hands and knees.

The solution:

A). Divorce your husband and put your kids up for adoption, vowing to do better next time.

B). Invest in an air freshener and forget about the dusty baseboards.

C). Hire a maid.

For some housework-haters, A is too drastic and B too sloppy. But C — ahh, now there's a solution.

Some Northwest suburban house-cleaning services feature color brochures, business cards and catchy titles like Scruburbanites, Mini-Maids, and Upstairs Downstairs. Others are basically one-woman operations which attract a clientele by word of mouth. But all are willing and able to tackle your bathtub ring and waxy kitchen buildup, and they report business is booming.

"FREEDOM FARES" vary. Most services contacted by The Herald charge between $15 and $20 for a one-bedroom apartment to $30 or $40 for a four-bedroom house. Professional outfits are more costly, however: the Palatine-Rolling Meadows franchise of Service Master averages $50 a visit for general household cleaning, and the company charged $120 for a Barrington home with sevpen bedrooms and a cathedral ceiling. Just as prices vary, so does the amount of time spent sweeping and polishing — anywhere from an hour to an entire afternoon if conditions warrant it.

What kind of service can you expect for those prices? The basics — vacuuming, dusting, wiping counter tops, cleaning bathrooms, washing and waxing kitchen floors — are standard. Transportation and cleaning supplies are usually provided, and two women may clean together to save time and ward off monotony.

Long lunch breaks are verboten, and many services screen applicants and provide references for added security.

IF YOU PICTURE today's house cleaners as underpaid women who do everything from the kitchen sink to the husband's shirts, take another look. Women employes are still the norm, but the pay can be as much as $5 or $6 an hour. And most services turn up their noses at extras like oven-cleaning and window-washing unless a higher fee is assessed.

"I charge from $8 on up for an oven because it takes a good couple of hours — we could be in a house all day," said a Des Plaines woman who preferred not to be identified. She and the six or seven women working for her will move furniture and wash sliding glass doors, "But not every time. After all, how many people do you know who move their beds every week?"

Of course, there are exceptions. Many services put in extra time if the client is ill or disabled and can't do basic cleaning himself. And at least one entrepreneur, Charlotte Ludford of Mount Prospect, promises to clean "everything that needs it," in return for a $35 fee. Her rationale?

"I KNOW WHAT it's like — I've hired 10 different cleaning women for my own home, and none of them wanted to do the dirty work," she said. "I can dust myself — you hire a maid to do the rough stuff."

Whether or not the "rough stuff" is included, local services have plenty of takers. The owner of one cleaning agency limited to apartments and condominiums asked not to be identified because she couldn't handle any more clients; another Des Plaines service cleans between 30 and 40 houses a week for $30 each, and the owner reports "the phone is ringing off the wall."

Just who are these eager customers? Many, to be sure, fit the stereotype of the well-heeled doctor's wife who practices her backhand while her cleaning woman takes care of the kitchen floor.

BUT NEARLY ALL Georgia Padulo's clients at Scruburbanites are bachelors who "just don't want to be bothered with everyday cleaning" — or who couldn't sanitize a toilet if their lives depended on it.

Single women with hectic schedules are also represented, but most owners agree that the growing number of working wives has given their businesses the biggest boost.

"Our house-cleaning business is definitely on the upswing," said John Meyer of Service Master in Palatine. "At least half our clients are working women who just don't have the time for a daily routine of housework."

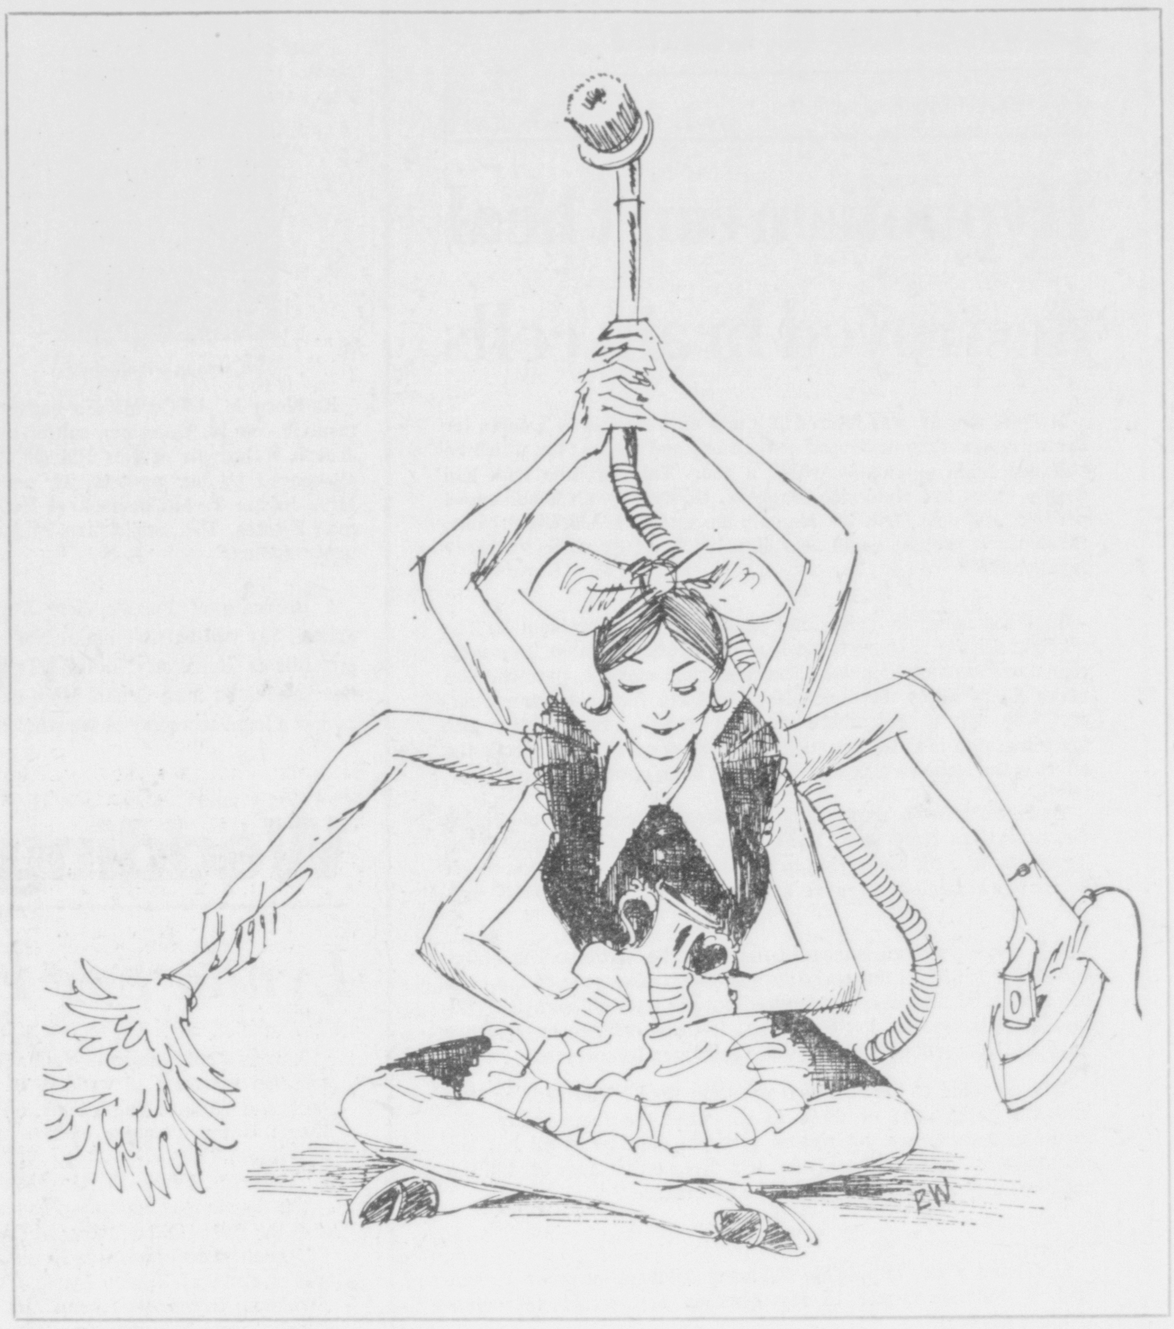
Adds the Des Plaines owner, "It's just a question of priorities — a clean house is still important to people, but they want to be doing something else . . . people are willing to pay for that added time."

THE NEED FOR cleaning services varies. Most customers opt for a bi-weekly schedule, though the weekly clients are "a real joy because they haven't done enough to get the place dirty again," chuckles the Des Plaines owner. Like many other owners, she often inspects a home before quoting a fee, and has even refused to clean a few: "There have been homes where I've walked in and walked right out again . . . the clutter and dirt was knee deep," she said.

But the pig sties are rare, and she contends even working wives and inept bachelors have no excuse for hiring outside help. "If you spend an hour a day, there's no reason you can't keep a house ready for company," she says.

"You'd be surprised at the number of people who just don't know how to clean," she continued. "It's true that kids make it a lot harder, but you have to train them . . . most parents don't make their kids make their own beds . . . but then, do you know how many ADULTS don't even clean their bathtubs?"

Apparently, there are quite a few with neither the time nor the inclination to mend their ways. And as long as they have the wherewithal to pay for their disdain, housecleaning services are ready, willing and able to take up the slack.



Domestics organize

Group sets sights on unionizing household help

by MIKE FEINSILBER

The great organizers of organized labor — Samuel Gompers, John L. Lewis, George Meany and Cesar Chavez — would blanch if they had to do what Anita Shelton wants to do.

She wants to unionize house maids.

But don't call them "maids." Ms. Shelton objects to that term. She prefers "household employes" or "household technicians."

And don't say "unionize," Ms. Shelton's employer — the National Committee on Household Employment (NCHE) in Washington — avoids that word. It's too strong.

"It is a no-no," she says.

Ms. Shelton — whose job resume describes her as "civil rights activist, social welfare innovator, community builder, black women's movement organizer and mother of two" — says instead her aim is to "bring them the benefits of collective bargaining."

BUT LOOK AT the obstacles:

• Most household employes — maids, babysitters, cooks, gardeners, chauffeurs and the like — haven't considered joining a union and probably would balk if they had the opportunity. Ms. Shelton says most think "union dues" when they hear "union."

• Most employers of household help, as you would expect, don't want to have to deal with a union. When they hear "union," Ms. Shelton says, they think "strike." Imagine a picket line in front of your picket fence.

• Few household employes or employers have ever heard of NCHE and of the effort to improve the lot of those in an invisible "profession."

• The AFL-CIO hasn't raised a finger, Ms. Shelton says, to support NCHE or help organize household help. She suspects sexism is the reason, since 97 per cent of the country's 1.5 million household workers are women. To win his sympathetic attention, George Meany was given an award at the NCHE's "Fair Labor Standards Luncheon," but he didn't bother attending.

• Money is a problem. The Ford Foundation, which had given NCHE $100,000 a year, cut down to $75,000 last time and pressed the organization to "diversify" its sources of funds.

• And, 13 years after its creation, NCHE remains split on fundamental goals.

Ms. Shelton says the old question of unionization is bound to rise again in October at the "annual convention of household workers" in Charlotte, N.C.

The meeting will bring together 21 organizations which formed the NCHE in 1964 at the suggestion of Esther Peterson, then head of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau. They are anything but united on NCHE's mission.

Despite these troubles, Ms. Shelton feels she will live to see most household workers carry a union card and work under a contract spelling out working conditions, duties, level of pay, sick leave, hospitalization, extra pay for holiday work, retirement benefits and the like.

"My friends tell me I'm talking pie in the sky," she says. "I'm no economist, but my assessment tells me we're entering a high demand, scarcity market," she says.

"PEOPLE ARE NOT gravitating into this field — it will always be low-status work — but with more wives working outside the home, the demand for household help is bound to rise."

Today, NCHE says, the average year-round, full-time household worker earns $2,732 a year — less than the poverty level. Two-thirds earn under $2,000 a year. In 29 states, there is no unemployment compensation to household workers, despite the well-known hazards in the home. Most can't qualify for Medicaid.

Ms. Shelton, who was raised in Englewood, N.J. by an aunt who worked as a domestic, was interviewed in NCHE's walkup office far from Washington's gleaming downtown buildings.

She says she knows all the arguments against unionizing household help.

"Oh, those famous words — 'We are good friends,' " she says scornfully. "That means friends can exploit a relationship."

She says she is too familiar with cases where two women grew old together. Then the employer sells her house and moves into an apartment or a nursing home and the employe, at age 65 or so, has to go into the job market for only the second time in her life.

SHE SAYS SHE knows of instances where a worker was assured she would be taken care of in a will, but the bequest turned out to be $500 — a princely sum when the will was written.

In the meantime, NCHE goals are more modest. In a statement presented to presidential assistant Midge Constanza in May, NCHE asked President Carter to support extending unemployment compensation and workmen's compensation (job accident insurance) to household employes.

The organization also asked for enforcement of the minimum wage law. Household workers were covered by the law several years ago, but a NCHE study says 40 per cent of household workers are still not paid the minimum wage.

"Imagine all those middle-class women not paying the minimum," says Ms. Shelton. "It's probably the only law they violate."

Plan ahead: sew your own fall garb

Dear Readers: It may seem a little early to start thinking about fall fashions, but a good way to save money and look smart at the same time is to sew your own. This will take some time of course, so it's not a moment too soon.

Before you think about new outfits, though, check your current wardrobe and see what is still in good condition. This will be a great year for mixing and matching, so try getting by with only a few new items. For example, if you already have a good velvet blazer, think about adding a tweed skirt, sweater vest and a satin or printed challis blouse. Good planning can make your wardrobe seem endless.

When selecting material for fall, look for lots of velvets or velours, corduroys, suedes (both real and synthetic) combined with jerseys, mohairs, flannels and tweeds.

Sew simple

"Place lightweight interfacing OVER the paper pattern and trace the seam lines after referring to the construction guide. This eliminates wasted interfacing and the time it takes to trim each piece after it is cut."

Dear Eunice Farmer: I am not too slender through the waist and when I wear a chemise dress with a fabric belt, the belt doubles up like a rope. I have tried interfacing the belt, but then it is too stiff to tie. Do you know a solution to this problem? Mrs. L. P.

Dear Mrs. L. P.: Keep using the interfacing, but only enough to encircle your waist. Leave it off the ends of the belt where the knot is made.

Dear Eunice Farmer: How can I sew patches on the knees of my son's pants? I don't have a zig-zag sewing machine. Mrs. R. E. F.

Dear Mrs. R. E. F.: Rip the inseam of the pants just above the area to be patched. Then machine stitch your patches on.

(Since you don't have a zig-zag machine, you may have to hand whip the edges down and close the seam in a conventional way. However, no one will know the difference and it will save lots of time in the long run.)

The doctor says

Hypnotism can't heal destroyed brain cells

My son, now 57, was injured 18 years ago. He was in a coma for twelve weeks, then developed convulsions and spasms for which he had two brain operations within a year. This left him with bad double vision and right side paralysis. He works with handicapped persons, and does well, but his only locomotion is his wheel chair. He thinks hypnotism could help him, but how? By whom? Where? Is it possible?

Your son needs to understand exactly what his problem is. The nervous system is constructed like an electrical system. Our muscles move because impulses, like electrical current, pass through nerve fibers which are much like the wires for an electrical circuit. The central area where all these circuits come together and are integrated is in the brain. If you destroy certain brain cells the effect is the same as if you broke a wire in an electrical circuit.

Your son's brain damage has destroyed cells that affect his vision and his right side. These cells will not regenerate. Using hypnotism is a bit like trying to use the power of suggestion to get an electrical current to move across a broken wire. It won't happen.

This same problem occurs in many stroke victims. The difference here is that in the early days of the stroke some of the cells don't work because they are injured but not totally destroyed. This is usually caused by local swelling. If these cells recover rather than die the function related to those cells may be regained.

How do some of the so-called miracles work? You need to look into the background of these to see what the facts really are. Sometimes these are not related to brain damage at all but are examples of hysterical paralysis, or a disease that does not kill the cells and they recover eventually like a "miracle."

Is driving a car impossible following cataract surgery? I can't find a definite answer to my question and would appreciate straight answers.

Lots of people who have had cataract surgery do drive a car without any difficulty at all. It depends entirely on how good the individual's total vision is after surgery.

Some people with cataracts have other eye problems as well. This may limit their results from surgery. The use of contact lenses after surgery has helped to limit the amount of distortion of vision that occurs. So if a person's eyes are otherwise normal and with the aid of contact lenses, most patients should be able to drive without any real problems after surgery. I suppose I should add that I am assuming the person could drive before surgery since the operation won't enable a non-driver to acquire the skill.

Advance planning helps in case of power outage

Dear Roberta: I learned four important lessons from a relative's experience in the latest New York City power failure. Since the nation's electric companies all feed into each other, a similar blackout could happen anywhere.

Power failure means water pump failure, too. And no water is even worse than no lights. So always keep on hand sealed bottles of distilled or other kinds of water. Make sure you have flashlights in working order, candles and safe holders and know where these all are should you need to find them in darkness.

Get a battery-run radio and check the batteries frequently. And last, but not least, be sure to keep in a logical place a nonelectric can opener. Mrs. Ben Crump.

Dear Roberta: I liked your tip about using plastic bags to hurry the ripening of peaches and nectarines, so want to tell you my method of maturing tomatoes. Even very hard, green ones will be ready in two or three days left in a brown bag atop the refrigerator. — Teresa Barnes.

Dear Roberta: Here's a suggestion for packrats. Hoard empty plastic margarine tubs with tight-fitting tops to make them into freezer devices. Fill them almost to the top with water, and then tie them in plastic bags to prevent possible leakage. They're fine for keeping lunches or food in picnic boxes cold.—Ruth Strobell.

And then, on top of these homemade freezers, you can set more tubs with individual servings of gelatin or pudding.

Dear Roberta: I put a small piece of masking tape on my house key. Now I can easily find it in the dark by feeling it among others on the key chain.—Mrs. Gabriel Elkin.
